Reds Take Back 2 Hills From ROKs

3,000 Fiercely Fighting Reds Rout Koreans in Hand to Hand Battles

New Troops Ready

Two Positions Are Key Spots on Invasion Route to Seoul

Seoul, Dec. 12 (AP)—About 750 Chinese Reds smashed back to the peak of Big and Little Nori Hills on the flaming western front today, only two hours after rugged South Koreans captured the strategic heights in a bloody, hand-to-hand battle.

Fiercely fighting Chinese swept up the slopes of the two hills in a two-pronged drive shielded by cover of darkness and a devastating Communist artillery and mortar barrage.

The valiant First Republic of Korea (ROK) Division had seized Big and Little Nori in the sixth of a series of bloody counterattacks in savage, day-long fighting.

Important Hills

Exhausted South Koreans, first backed down the smoke-shrouded slopes of Big and Little Nori yesterday after the Chinese threw nearly 3,000 men into the searing battle for the stepping-stone hills on the northern invasion route to Seoul.

Associated Press Correspondent Milo Farneti reported the ROK infantrymen drove the Reds from Little Nori in an enveloping attack from the right and left flanks.

A half hour later, South Koreans dug in around nearby Big Nori to cut off the Communist approach route. Then the ROKS dashed through Chinese fire to the peak of the bloodstained crest.

Farneti said the two peaks, overlooking the frozen Imjin river north of Yonchon, were pounded by allied artillery fire for about three hours late today. Allied fighter-bombers swarmed overhead.

Seventy planes swooped down in close support of the ROK attacks. They slammed rockets and napalm (jellied gasoline) bombs into the Communist positions.

Smoke and flame billowed high in the air.

Hit Huge Supply Depots

The air force said its pilots flew about 150 separate missions in the general area of Big and Little Nori. Pilots said they hit a huge supply and troop depot that rocked with five violent explosions. Seven fires were started.

Two Chinese counterattacks on Big Nori were chopped to bits by big allied guns.

Earlier, thundering Chinese big guns had broken the back of repeated South Korean attacks on the two heights. The ROKs reached the crest of Little Nori each time—but stunning Communist barrages forced them back.

The South Koreans had tried three times on Thursday to recapture Little Nori. The attacks were resumed in the early-morning darkness today.

14,000 New Men Ready

Elsewhere, allied raiders grappled hand-to-hand with Chinese Reds northwest of Munsan on the western front. The allies secured the crest of a hill in bloody, close-range combat after twice being driven back. The United Nations troops later withdrew to their own lines.

Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U. S. Eighth Army commander, today reported a new South Korean division of about 14,000 men is nearly ready for combat duty. He said the unit "could replace an American division on the battlefront."

Van Fleet said a second new ROK division would follow the first into battle "soon thereafter." He added there are "easily 100,000 South Korean recruits" in training as replacements for the ROK army.

Brewer Says Eisenhower View Is War, Started by 'Vacillating Leadership', Is One to Be Settled on Worldwide Basis—Would Spare Sons

New Bedford, Mass., Dec. 12 (AP)—Basil Brewer, publisher of the New Bedford Standard-Times, today quoted President-elect Eisenhower as saying on Oct. 24 "We are not going to withdraw from Korea and leave our boys in Communist prison camps."

Brewer said he delayed making public what he called Eisenhower's "long range views toward ending the Korean conflict" until the President-elect had completed the visit to Korea he promised during the campaign.

The correspondence between the publisher and Eisenhower was published today in the Standard-Times.

Brewer said a letter from the general, dated Oct. 24 from Detroit, stated in part:

"There is no easy or early solution of the Korean situation. To the contrary, I have said that this war into which our vacillating leadership took us unprepared, is one part of a global problem which must eventually be solved on a worldwide basis.

"Pending other solutions, I have for a long time advocated stepping up the training of Republic of Korea troops in far greater numbers. Such a program is in our interest, gradually to lessen the drain on our manpower, and in the interest of the Korean Republic. In fact, the Korean ambassador has said, 'give us the guns and spare your sons.'

Could Take Better Roles

"Had a ROK training and arming program been properly initiated and vigorously pressed, American and United Nations troops could by this time occupy more supporting roles and reserve positions, giving assurance that the ROKs would not suffer from an overwhelming pressure or an all-out enemy strike.

"We are not going to withdraw from Korea and leave our boys in Communist prison camps."

Brewer said Eisenhower's letter was evoked by a telegram he sent the then Presidential candidate on Oct. 23 "as a result of remarks by the general and others speaking in his behalf which were interpreted widely as offering hope for an early solution to the Korean war."

Brewer was Massachusetts manager for Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) in his Presidential campaign before the convention that nominated Eisenhower.

Stays Clear of Wrangle

By DON WHITEHEAD

Honolulu, Dec. 12 (AP) — President-elect Eisenhower, relaxing in bright Hawaiian sunshine from his Korean tour and policy-shaping talks, was steering clear today of any fight between President Truman and Gen. MacArthur over a peace plan for Korea.

Eisenhower planned to play at least 18 holes of golf today on the windswept course alongside the sea at Kaneohe, the Marine Corps air station across Oahu Island from Honolulu. He also planned talks with John Foster Dulles, secretary of state-designate, and Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon, Eisenhower's selection as secretary of the interior.

Wiley Threatens UN With Loss of Its Financial Support

U. S. Must Be Sure Spies, Subversives Will Be Kept Away From Secretariat

United Nations, Dec. 12 (AP)—Sen. Alexander Wiley (R.-Wis.) threatened the United Nations last night with a loss of its biggest chunk of financial support—that from the United States—unless something is done to keep subversives and spies out of the UN secretariat.

But in making his threat, Wiley—who is slated to head the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the new Congress—made it clear he thinks a major part of the blame for alleged subversives still on the UN payrolls lies with the American State Department.

Wiley said in a statement that Congressional sentiment is building up to cut off U. S. money for the international organization "unless adequate security procedures have been worked out to guarantee that the UN and its organs do not remain a base for espionage and subversion."

Admissions Are Made at Senate Hearing by Man, Woman

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Two Americans employed by the United Nations say they once were members of the Communist party but dropped out because they disapproved of Communist aims.

Their admissions at an open hearing yesterday drew praise from Sen. Homer Ferguson (R-Mich), member of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee probing alleged American subversives in the UN.

Praised by Ferguson were John Charnow, a reports officer for the UN International Children's Emergency fund, and Mrs. Evelyn Thaler, secretary to Konstantin E. Zinchenko of Russia, assistant

County, City Defense Units Consolidated by Supervisors

Contracts to construct two bridges in the town of Shandaken which were swept away by the flood waters of Esopus creek in 1950 were awarded last evening by the Board of Supervisors. Both awards were to the low bidder under contracts opened on December 4.

On recommendation of County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran the contract to build the Holden bridge was awarded to Thomas B. Spagnotetti of Binghamton for $84,032.50, the contract for the Donahue bridge was awarded to Fred W. Johnson Construction Co. of Cornwall for $100,196. A difference of $50,000 between low and high bidder in each instance was noted.

Named to Health Board

Dr. Robert F. Moseley of Kingston and Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt of New Paltz were re-appointed members of the Ulster County Board of Health for a six-year term and Edwin J. O'Reilly of Kingston was named a member of the board to fill out the unexpired term of Rt. Rev. Msgr. Martin F. Drury, who resigned from the board because of ill health.

On recommendation of Dr. Dudley W. Hargrave, commissioner of health, the sum of $3,059 which remains unexpended from a $30,000 appropriation made for installation of a new boiler and renovation of the old boiler at the tuberculosis hospital, was earmarked for completion of the work. The resolution earmarking the balance of the fund stated that the work had not been entirely completed and would not be completed until after December 31, 1952, and that the sum was necessary to pay bills contracted during this fiscal year.

Dunn Says Flood Damage Slight in Upper Esopus Area

Creek Is Back to Normal Flow After Deluge —Rondout Is Also High

The upper Esopus creek was approaching its normal flow this morning after a flood Thursday afternoon which blocked traffic but otherwise caused little reported damage.

Nearly three and one-half inches of rain fell during the storm Wednesday and Thursday, which added to melting snow caused the upper Esopus to overflow its banks and inundate the Onteora Trail in several places in the Mt. Tremper area.

The peak of the flood was reached at 2:10 p. m. Thursday at Cold Brook, where the high guage reading reported by the New York Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity was 17.03 feet. Normal reading is around six feet.

Reports Hole in Road

Cpl. Ray Dunn, state police officer of Phoenicia, said this morning there was little evidence of property damage in the area. One report received by him last night stated that a hole, estimated at four feet in depth, appeared in Route 42 between Lexington and West Kill. The Greene County Highway Department was notified and made repairs to the route, a heavily travelled milk truck route.

Upstate Sections Report Wet Snow

News, Radio, Television Cables Are Affected in Some Areas

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 12 (AP)—Wet snow showered much of upstate New York today—a soupy sequel to heavy rains that had flooded cellars, blocked roads and spilled rivers over their banks.

The downpour yesterday forced several families to flee their homes at Pulaski when cellars flooded. In some areas, the drenching knocked out radio, television and news cables.

The Weather Bureau predicted light snow today, most of it in the Great Lakes area and in the northern mountain regions. Cloudiness and dropping temperatures were forecast.

The storm first hit the southern tier of counties and swept northeast across the state.

The Chemung river went out of its banks near Elmira, and the Susquehanna hit flood stage at Oneonta. At Rome, the Mohawk river was reported flooding farmland.

Melting snow swelled rivers in the Adirondack region. Up to two feet of snow melted in Lewis county and, with the rain, sent the Black river to an estimated 20 feet above normal.

The Salmon river went over its banks for much of its length, from Lewis county to Lake Ontario.

Smaller streams went on rampages in both the Catskills and Adirondacks.

A-Subs May Beat Thick Polar Ice

Submersibles, Full Crew Likely to Stay Under for a Month

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)— The leagues of thick polar sea ice which stand between the northern rims of the western hemisphere and Eurasia may be no barrier to the atomic submarines the U. S. is now building.

That was made evident today by replies from the navy to questions about the nuclear engined submarines it is developing—submersibles in which the crew as well as the boat can remain deep down for days, weeks or possibly months.

The northern approach to the mainlands (Russia and Canada, for example) always had been closed by the great areas of frozen seas or unyielding pack ice through which no ship could force its way—until the advent of long range aircraft.

But an article written for Collier's Magazine by Rear Adm. Homer Wallin, chief of the bureau of ships, spoke cryptically of the ability of atomic submarines to launch guided missiles with atomic warheads and then slide silently beneath the waves "or ice" to reappear at another point to launch another attack.

Batteries Are Handicap

A reporter who asked navy officials about this was told:

"It is possible for even conventional submarines to operate under ice. Since a conventional submarine submerged endurance is limited by its batteries, and it must have air for operating its engines to recharge its batteries, it has a limited endurance for under ice operation.

"The Nautilus (first of the atomic powered boats to be started), which will be independent of the earth's atmosphere, will, therefore, be able to operate under ice for longer periods of time. It makes no difference whether the ice is solid or mushy as long as there is sufficient depth of water beneath the ice to permit submarine operation."

(The Arctic sea apparently has plenty of water beneath the ice, except possibly for some areas

General Gives Report in Provoo Trial, Appears for Defense

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright testified today that a Japanese threat to slay more than 10,000 American troops who had surrendered on Corregidor forced him to surrender all American and Philippine forces in the islands May 6, 1942.

"I realized I'd have to do it," he said, "or the blood of all those men (on Corregidor) would be on my head."

The general, left in command of American forces in the Philippines after Gen. Douglas MacArthur was transferred to Australia, testified under subpoena as a defense witness in the Federal Court treason trial of John David Provoo. The former American Army sergeant was among Americans taken prisoner on Corregidor.

In Civilian Clothes

Wainwright, now retired, appeared in civilian clothes and still showed the effects of hardships he endured as a prisoner of the Japanese. Normally slim, he appeared wan and carried a cane. He was assisted to the witness stand.

The general said the Japanese told him they would not accept surrender of his forces on the island fortress of Corregidor unless he surrendered all American troops throughout the island.

Railroad Plans To Retain Station

Attorney Says Petition Is Withdrawn to Close at West Hurley

The New York Central Railroad has withdrawn its petition to abandon the West Hurley station on its Mountain Division, it was revealed today by Vincent G. Connelly, attorney for the railroad.

Notification of the railroad's decision to withdraw the petition was made by letter to the Public Service Commission on Wednesday. The withdrawal was made "without prejudice," meaning that the railroad retains the right to resubmit the petition in the future should it decide to do so.

Opposition to the abandonment of the West Hurley station had developed since the railroad first announced its request and the Woodstock Business Men's Association, the town of Woodstock and a group of area manufacturing firms had retained Attorney John Egan to protest the proposal at a hearing which the P.S.C. had scheduled for Monday. The withdrawal means the hearing will become unnecessary and service will continue at the station.

The New York Central's Mountain division operates over the former Ulster and Delaware Railroad line.

Says It Isn't Easy

London, Dec. 12 (AP)—Mrs. Tommy Manville, ninth wife of the American millionaire, made a swift tour of London's glittering west end shops today to see what 2,000 pounds ($5,600) could do by way of Christmas presents. Just intimate little things, not yachts or polo ponies, she explained. Homeward bound after a European tour, Mrs. Manville is collecting presents for Tommy, and it's not easy, considering that Tommy already has just about everything he wants, she told British reports. Mrs. Manville, who was Anita Frances Roddy-Eden, left Manville 12 days after they were married last July and has filed suit for separation.

Stichman made the statement yesterday at a public hearing before the joint legislative committee on problems of the aging.

Senator Proposes Committee Session

Wyoming Democrat Favors Meeting on MacArthur Viewpoint

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—Sen. Hunt (D.-Wyo.) proposed today an immediate extraordinary session of the Senate Armed Services Committee to look into Gen. Douglas MacArthur's views on ending the Korean War.

President Truman, with some barbed remarks about both MacArthur and President-elect Eisenhower, rejected yesterday a senator's suggestion that he call the two men to the White House to discuss Korea.

Truman said, among other things, he doubts MacArthur has hit upon any new way to peace, and that he still thinks Eisenhower's campaign announcement that he would go to the Korea War zone was demagoguery.

GOP Cries Heard

Truman's words drew some GOP cries of "arrogant" and "slanderous" on Capitol Hill. Hunt, taking no part in that row, told a reporter:

"I would like to see Sen. Russell (D.-Ga.) call either or both generals to Capitol Hill to brief the Armed Services Committee."

In Atlanta, however, Russell expressed doubt that "any useful purpose" would be served by a meeting of the committee. The committee chairman who presided over the 1951 Senate investigation of the President's removal of MacArthur as Korean Commander, said the committee can only recommend to Congress and has "no power to compel action in the field of foreign relations."

Braden Says Kenny's Move Astonishing, Inconceivable

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Spruille Braden says he considers it "astonishing" and "inconceivable" that Mayor John V. Kenny of Jersey City should avoid testifying before the New York State Crime Commission.

Braden, former U. S. ambassador to Argentina who now heads the New York City Anti-Crime Committee, an independent citizens group, made the remarks in a statement last night after Kenny declined an invitation to continue testifying before the state group.

"It is inconceivable that the mayor of Jersey City, which is such an integral part of the New York waterfront, should evade this public duty under any subterfuge," Braden said.

Kenny received a letter yesterday inviting him to testify before the commission on Dec. 17. He said he had no intention of honoring the invitation pending the disposition of the Hudson county grand jury indictment of an investigator who admittedly had been working in conjunction with the New York State Crime Commission."

Kenny referred to the indictment last week of Robert Greene, investigator for the committee headed by Braden, which is working along with the state commission.

Greene, a former reporter for the Jersey Journal, pleaded inno-

Protestants Reaffirm State And Church as Separate

Denver, Dec. 12 (AP)—Leaders of 30 Protestant churches today reaffirmed traditional separation of church and state but asked their 35 million members to live by Christian principles and halt a drift of American government from religious tenets.

They called for more religious education in schools and colleges but said parochial schools should receive no government aid. They demanded a halt to religious and racial discrimination. They encouraged church members to seek political office as a way to halt corruption.

In a formal message to their home churches, clergy and lay leaders backed up statements by members of President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower's official family that America can lead the way to lasting peace only by showing that freedom works in this country.

The message was presented at the concluding session of the biennial General Assembly of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. Officials said it would be adopted formally this afternoon with only a few minor changes in wording.

The message represents thoughts expressed in six days of almost continuous conferences here and the experience of the two years of existence of this largest U. S. church organization.

Dunn Says Flood Damage Slight in Upper Esopus Area

Creek Is Back to Normal Flow After Deluge —Rondout Is Also High

The upper Esopus creek was approaching its normal flow this morning after a flood Thursday afternoon which blocked traffic but otherwise caused little reported damage.

Nearly three and one-half inches of rain fell during the storm Wednesday and Thursday, which added to melting snow caused the upper Esopus to overflow its banks and inundate the Onteora Trail in several places in the Mt. Tremper area.

The peak of the flood was reached at 2:10 p. m. Thursday at Cold Brook, where the high guage reading reported by the New York Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity was 17.03 feet. Normal reading is around six feet.

Reports Hole in Road

Cpl. Ray Dunn, state police officer of Phoenicia, said this morning there was little evidence of property damage in the area. One report received by him last night stated that a hole, estimated at four feet in depth, appeared in Route 42 between Lexington and West Kill. The Greene County Highway Department was notified and made repairs to the route, a heavily travelled milk truck route.

Upstate Sections Report Wet Snow

News, Radio, Television Cables Are Affected in Some Areas

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 12 (AP)—Wet snow showered much of upstate New York today—a soupy sequel to heavy rains that had flooded cellars, blocked roads and spilled rivers over their banks.

The downpour yesterday forced several families to flee their homes at Pulaski when cellars flooded. In some areas, the drenching knocked out radio, television and news cables.

The Weather Bureau predicted light snow today, most of it in the Great Lakes area and in the northern mountain regions. Cloudiness and dropping temperatures were forecast.

The storm first hit the southern tier of counties and swept northeast across the state.

The Chemung river went out of its banks near Elmira, and the Susquehanna hit flood stage at Oneonta. At Rome, the Mohawk river was reported flooding farmland.

Melting snow swelled rivers in the Adirondack region. Up to two feet of snow melted in Lewis county and, with the rain, sent the Black river to an estimated 20 feet above normal.

The Salmon river went over its banks for much of its length, from Lewis county to Lake Ontario.

Smaller streams went on rampages in both the Catskills and Adirondacks.

Wainwright Says He Quit To Save 10,000 Americans

General Gives Report in Provoo Trial, Appears for Defense

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright testified today that a Japanese threat to slay more than 10,000 American troops who had surrendered on Corregidor forced him to surrender all American and Philippine forces in the islands May 6, 1942.

"I realized I'd have to do it," he said, "or the blood of all those men (on Corregidor) would be on my head."

The general, left in command of American forces in the Philippines after Gen. Douglas MacArthur was transferred to Australia, testified under subpoena as a defense witness in the Federal Court treason trial of John David Provoo. The former American Army sergeant was among Americans taken prisoner on Corregidor.

In Civilian Clothes

Wainwright, now retired, appeared in civilian clothes and still showed the effects of hardships he endured as a prisoner of the Japanese. Normally slim, he appeared wan and carried a cane. He was assisted to the witness stand.

The general said the Japanese told him they would not accept surrender of his forces on the island fortress of Corregidor unless he surrendered all American troops throughout the island.

Gen. Wainwright recounted in

A-Subs May Beat Thick Polar Ice

Submersibles, Full Crew Likely to Stay Under for a Month

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)— The leagues of thick polar sea ice which stand between the northern rims of the western hemisphere and Eurasia may be no barrier to the atomic submarines the U. S. is now building.

That was made evident today by replies from the navy to questions about the nuclear engined submarines it is developing—submersibles in which the crew as well as the boat can remain deep down for days, weeks or possibly months.

The northern approach to the mainlands (Russia and Canada, for example) always had been closed by the great areas of frozen seas or unyielding pack ice through which no ship could force its way—until the advent of long range aircraft.

But an article written for Collier's Magazine by Rear Adm. Homer Wallin, chief of the bureau of ships, spoke cryptically of the ability of atomic submarines to launch guided missiles with atomic warheads and then slide silently beneath the waves "or ice" to reappear at another point to launch another attack.

Batteries Are Handicap

A reporter who asked navy officials about this was told:

"It is possible for even conventional submarines to operate under ice. Since a conventional submarine submerged endurance is limited by its batteries, and it must have air for operating its engines to recharge its batteries, it has a limited endurance for under ice operation.

"The Nautilus (first of the atomic powered boats to be started), which will be independent of the earth's atmosphere, will, therefore, be able to operate under ice for longer periods of time. It makes no difference whether the ice is solid or mushy as long as there is sufficient depth of water beneath the ice to permit submarine operation."

(The Arctic sea apparently has plenty of water beneath the ice, except possibly for some areas

Radel Observation Is To Appear in Cartoon

A tree growing in Connelly at the Hiltebrant shipyard is not expected to achieve the notice of the one that grows (or grew) in Brooklyn, but millions in the nation will read about the local tree next week.

The tree, spotted by Joseph Radel, of 148 Hudson street, will appear Monday in Ripley's "Believe It or Not." It gained a spot in this cartoon panel because it is growing through a metal ring. The Ripley feature is one of the most widely read in this and other nations.

Railroad Plans To Retain Station

Attorney Says Petition Is Withdrawn to Close at West Hurley

The New York Central Railroad has withdrawn its petition to abandon the West Hurley station on its Mountain Division, it was revealed today by Vincent G. Connelly, attorney for the railroad.

Notification of the railroad's decision to withdraw the petition was made by letter to the Public Service Commission on Wednesday. The withdrawal was made "without prejudice," meaning that the railroad retains the right to resubmit the petition in the future should it decide to do so.

Opposition to the abandonment of the West Hurley station had developed since the railroad first announced its request and the Woodstock Business Men's Association, the town of Woodstock and a group of area manufacturing firms had retained Attorney John Egan to protest the proposal at a hearing which the P.S.C. had scheduled for Monday. The withdrawal means the hearing will become unnecessary and service will continue at the station.

The New York Central's Mountain division operates over the former Ulster and Delaware Railroad line.

Says It Isn't Easy

London, Dec. 12 (AP)—Mrs. Tommy Manville, ninth wife of the American millionaire, made a swift tour of London's glittering west end shops today to see what 2,000 pounds ($5,600) could do by way of Christmas presents. Just intimate little things, not yachts or polo ponies, she explained. Homeward bound after a European tour, Mrs. Manville is collecting presents for Tommy, and it's not easy, considering that Tommy already has just about everything he wants, she told British reports. Mrs. Manville, who was Anita Frances Roddy-Eden, left Manville 12 days after they were married last July and has filed suit for separation.

Stichman reports that 585 specially constructed apartments for the aged will be ready, or under way, in public housing developments in New York state in 1953. Braden Says Kenny's Move Astonishing, Inconceivable

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Spruille Braden says he considers it "astonishing" and "inconceivable" that Mayor John V. Kenny of Jersey City should avoid testifying before the New York State Crime Commission.

Braden, former U. S. ambassador to Argentina who now heads the New York City Anti-Crime Committee, an independent citizens group, made the remarks in a statement last night after Kenny declined an invitation to continue testifying before the state group.

"It is inconceivable that the mayor of Jersey City, which is such an integral part of the New York waterfront, should evade this public duty under any subterfuge," Braden said.

Kenny received a letter yesterday inviting him to testify before the commission on Dec. 17. He said he had no intention of honoring the invitation pending the disposition of the Hudson county grand jury indictment of an investigator who admittedly had been working in conjunction with the New York State Crime Commission."

Kenny referred to the indictment last week of Robert Greene, investigator for the committee headed by Braden, which is working along with the state commission.

Greene, a former reporter for the Jersey Journal, pleaded inno-

Protestants Reaffirm State And Church as Separate

Denver, Dec. 12 (AP)—Leaders of 30 Protestant churches today reaffirmed traditional separation of church and state but asked their 35 million members to live by Christian principles and halt a drift of American government from religious tenets.

They called for more religious education in schools and colleges but said parochial schools should receive no government aid. They demanded a halt to religious and racial discrimination. They encouraged church members to seek political office as a way to halt corruption.

In a formal message to their home churches, clergy and lay leaders backed up statements by members of President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower's official family that America can lead the way to lasting peace only by showing that freedom works in this country.

The message was presented at the concluding session of the biennial General Assembly of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. Officials said it would be adopted formally this afternoon with only a few minor changes in wording.

The message represents thoughts expressed in six days of almost continuous conferences here and the experience of the two years of existence of this largest U. S. church organization.

It mirrors the statement by Lu-than one-third of the UN bills and has contributed 560 million dollars to it since 1946.

Wiley is serving as a U. S. delegate to the UN Assembly, but he emphasized that he spoke only as a senator. The American delegation to the UN was taken aback by Wiley's blast and had no comment.

The Wisconsin Republican blistered current arrangements on security between the State Department and the UN as "hopelessly inadequate."

He said UN Secretary General Trygve Lie had a "clearer conception" of the problem than some State Department officials. He blamed Washington officials for giving Lie inadequate information on which to act against American employes with allegedly subversive records.

U. S. Assistant Secretary of State John Hickerson told the McCarran Senate Internal Security sub-Committee Wednesday that the State Department had supplied Lie with adverse information about 40 American UN employes, but that 14 of them still were employed by the UN. Lie was reported to feel that Hickerson's statement implied that he had failed to act when presented with definite evidence against American employes by the American government.

The UN authorized a statement by a spokesman yesterday saying that the adverse information was merely delivered orally and that he had never received written information for the record or definite evidence of subversive connections which would warrant firing a secretariat member.

Those whom Lie has discharged, the spokesman said, were discharged on the basis of the public testimony before the committee and not on unfavorable comments made by the State Department.

A UN source said 19 persons have been fired for refusing to answer Senate Committee questions, and a total of 29 separated from UN employment in one way or another for security reasons. He said there have been no security firings of non-Americans.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Railroads encouraged an upward trend in the stock market today after a two-day decline.

The list spread over a range of around a point lower to two points higher.

Volume picked up on the rise and hit a pace better than yesterday's 1,790,000 shares.

Railroads not only were the most active in the major divisions but some of the best prices also were displayed there.

Going up with the carriers were steels, motors, motion pictures, and building materials. The coppers and golds showed lower tendencies while other major divisions were steady to broadly mixed.

Packard was easily the most active issue in the list with blocks as large as 10,000 shares on the tape at unchanged prices of 5½.

Says Problem Solved

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—The problem of getting the Wage Stabilization Board (WSB) back into operation, Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam said last night, "has been solved." There was no word, however, whether President Truman would announce today the names of the seven industry men Putnam says will replace those who resigned last week in protest against the President's action in the soft coal miners' wage case. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce had urged businessmen not to accept places on the wage board, paralyzed since the old industry members walked out.

Vernon Citizens Have Daily Peace Prayers

Vernon, Dec. 12 (AP)—Called by a blast from a factory whistle, this upstate village's 587 residents today start daily prayers for peace.

Service clubs sponsoring the project said yesterday that the whistle would blow daily at 11 a. m. as a signal for villagers' prayers.

Protestants . . .

theran Bishop Otto Dibelius of Berlin last night that "communism will be conquered only through the Christian faith." Bishop Dibelius thanked American churches for their relief work and support. Activities, the message said, must be expended through missions and the United Nations.

It parallels words of two other speakers last night: Elfan Rees of Geneva, Switzerland, advisor on refugee affairs to the World Council of Churches, who said "the church is in a life and death struggle for the soul of Europe and its own existence" and Dr. James H. Robinson of New York who held Christians "partly responsible" for the spread of communism because they have put their faith in "money, schemes and weapons" instead of God.

The message follows the spirit of a resolution passed yesterday urging that Inauguration Day Jan. 20 be made a day of prayer for divine guidance for Eisenhower.

And an appointee to Eisenhower's cabinet, John Foster Dulles, named secretary of state, said there is a need for a spiritual revival.

Dulles cautioned that "when ennobling purposes goes out of freedom, it is easily displaced by false faiths, such as communism."

He also said that our heritage would be lost "if we have no purpose, if our course is one of drift interspersed with rear guard actions."

"Throughout the world, there are myriad souls that suffer in humiliation and bitterness because of the white man's assumption of racial superiority," he added. "If freedom is to seem worthwhile, then our people, who profess to be the champions of liberty, must voluntarily practice human fellowship."

Depends on Fuel Supply

The atomic power plant will require no air in creating the superheat to produce steam for the propulsion turbine, and thus can remain under water as long as the fuel lasts. This can be a long time—the fission of one pound of uranium releases energy equal to the combustion of 2,600,000 tons of coal.

That left the question of how long the crew of an atomic submersible could stay down, out of the earth's atmosphere. Wallin said the Bureau of Ships is working on a gadget to take oxygen from the water, and that this may be ready for use in the Nautilus.

The Nautilus, it develops, will have aboard the old, tested types of power plants as well as the radically new nuclear engine. There will be diesel and battery-driven electric power plants as alternate systems. The navy said that "if the nuclear plant is shut down, the diesel or battery system provides power to turn the propellers as well as providing auxiliary electric power."

the army and navy, can order Gen. MacArthur to report to him or to officials of the defense establishment whenever he sees fit to do so," Russell said.

"I doubt very much that such a meeting of the Senate Armed Services Committee would serve any useful purpose while the Congress is not in session."

Hunt, a member of Russell's committee, said he thought Congress should be "informed and consulted" at once if there is any new plan to end the war.

"This is not a matter that I believe should wait until the new Congress convenes on Jan. 3," Hunt said. "And I am convinced most members of the committee would be able and more than willing to return to Washington on such an important mission."

Wiley Threatens

than one-third of the UN bills and has contributed 560 million dollars to it since 1946.

Wiley is serving as a U. S. delegate to the UN Assembly, but he emphasized that he spoke only as a senator. The American delegation to the UN was taken aback by Wiley's blast and had no comment.

The Wisconsin Republican blistered current arrangements on security between the State Department and the UN as "hopelessly inadequate."

He said UN Secretary General Trygve Lie had a "clearer conception" of the problem than some State Department officials. He blamed Washington officials for giving Lie inadequate information on which to act against American employes with allegedly subversive records.

U. S. Assistant Secretary of State John Hickerson told the McCarran Senate Internal Security sub-Committee Wednesday that the State Department had supplied Lie with adverse information about 40 American UN employes, but that 14 of them still were employed by the UN. Lie was reported to feel that Hickerson's statement implied that he had failed to act when presented with definite evidence against American employes by the American government.

The UN authorized a statement by a spokesman yesterday saying that the adverse information was merely delivered orally and that he had never received written information for the record or definite evidence of subversive connections which would warrant firing a secretariat member.

Those whom Lie has discharged, the spokesman said, were discharged on the basis of the public testimony before the committee and not on unfavorable comments made by the State Department.

A UN source said 19 persons have been fired for refusing to answer Senate Committee questions, and a total of 29 separated from UN employment in one way or another for security reasons. He said there have been no security firings of non-Americans.

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Railroads encouraged an upward trend in the stock market today after a two-day decline.

The list spread over a range of around a point lower to two points higher.

Volume picked up on the rise and hit a pace better than yesterday's 1,790,000 shares.

Railroads not only were the most active in the major divisions but some of the best prices also were displayed there.

Going up with the carriers were steels, motors, motion pictures, and building materials. The coppers and golds showed lower tendencies while other major divisions were steady to broadly mixed.

Packard was easily the most active issue in the list with blocks as large as 10,000 shares on the tape at unchanged prices of 5½.

Says Problem Solved

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—The problem of getting the Wage Stabilization Board (WSB) back into operation, Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam said last night, "has been solved." There was no word, however, whether President Truman would announce today the names of the seven industry men Putnam says will replace those who resigned last week in protest against the President's action in the soft coal miners' wage case. The U. S. Chamber of Commerce had urged businessmen not to accept places on the wage board, paralyzed since the old industry members walked out.

Vernon Citizens Have Daily Peace Prayers

Vernon, Dec. 12 (AP)—Called by a blast from a factory whistle, this upstate village's 587 residents today start daily prayers for peace.

Service clubs sponsoring the project said yesterday that the whistle would blow daily at 11 a. m. as a signal for villagers' prayers.

Protestants . . .

theran Bishop Otto Dibelius of Berlin last night that "communism will be conquered only through the Christian faith." Bishop Dibelius thanked American churches for their relief work and support. Activities, the message said, must be expended through missions and the United Nations.

It parallels words of two other speakers last night: Elfan Rees of Geneva, Switzerland, advisor on refugee affairs to the World Council of Churches, who said "the church is in a life and death struggle for the soul of Europe and its own existence" and Dr. James H. Robinson of New York who held Christians "partly responsible" for the spread of communism because they have put their faith in "money, schemes and weapons" instead of God.

The message follows the spirit of a resolution passed yesterday urging that Inauguration Day Jan. 20 be made a day of prayer for divine guidance for Eisenhower.

And an appointee to Eisenhower's cabinet, John Foster Dulles, named secretary of state, said there is a need for a spiritual revival.

Dulles cautioned that "when ennobling purposes goes out of freedom, it is easily displaced by false faiths, such as communism."

He also said that our heritage would be lost "if we have no purpose, if our course is one of drift interspersed with rear guard actions."

"Throughout the world, there are myriad souls that suffer in humiliation and bitterness because of the white man's assumption of racial superiority," he added. "If freedom is to seem worthwhile, then our people, who profess to be the champions of liberty, must voluntarily practice human fellowship."

Depends on Fuel Supply

The atomic power plant will require no air in creating the superheat to produce steam for the propulsion turbine, and thus can remain under water as long as the fuel lasts. This can be a long time—the fission of one pound of uranium releases energy equal to the combustion of 2,600,000 tons of coal.

That left the question of how long the crew of an atomic submersible could stay down, out of the earth's atmosphere. Wallin said the Bureau of Ships is working on a gadget to take oxygen from the water, and that this may be ready for use in the Nautilus.

The Nautilus, it develops, will have aboard the old, tested types of power plants as well as the radically new nuclear engine. There will be diesel and battery-driven electric power plants as alternate systems. The navy said that "if the nuclear plant is shut down, the diesel or battery system provides power to turn the propellers as well as providing auxiliary electric power."

the army and navy, can order Gen. MacArthur to report to him or to officials of the defense establishment whenever he sees fit to do so," Russell said.

"I doubt very much that such a meeting of the Senate Armed Services Committee would serve any useful purpose while the Congress is not in session."

Hunt, a member of Russell's committee, said he thought Congress should be "informed and consulted" at once if there is any new plan to end the war.

"This is not a matter that I believe should wait until the new Congress convenes on Jan. 3," Hunt said. "And I am convinced most members of the committee would be able and more than willing to return to Washington on such an important mission."

Ulster Tax Share From Motor Tax Reaches $13,082

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 12—State Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern has announced the distribution of $882,540.76 of motor vehicle tax receipts to the 57 counties outside the City of New York.

Ulster county's share is $13,082.87.

This total is the share of state-collected motor vehicle fees for the three months ending September 30, 1952, which is being returned to the counties in accordance with the state highway law.

The law provides that 25 per cent of the fees collected under the vehicle and traffic law from residents of a county outside New York city be returned to local government.

The money is deposited in county road funds, from which expenditures for construction and maintenance of county road systems are made. Checks are being mailed to the county fiscal officers.

Red Cross Will Hold Blood Drive To Combat Polio

Mrs. Samuel J. Adams, chairman, and Mrs. Walter K. Hubbard, executive director of the local Red Cross chapter, attended a fund planning meeting at the Dutchess County Headquarters in Poughkeepsie Wednesday. Representatives from nine chapters attended the meeting conducted by Walter Bohan, director of Field Service in New York, Miss Page Price, director of public information and Llewellyn Baer, field representative.

The program of service of the organization of its financial needs were outlined in detail. It was reported that of the $87,000,000 fund campaign goal for 1952, $84,832,000 had been received to date. In the midwest floods alone the Red Cross gave relief in the amount of $14,000,000.

The acceptance of the Red Cross of the Office of Defense Mobilization to undertake an immediate and dramatic expansion of its National Blood Program to make available all the gamma globulin possible for the prevention of paralysis from poliomyelitis also was discussed.

It was pointed out that after a study by the National Research Council in collaboration with interested groups recommendation to the ODM that the maximum blood fractation capacity of this country be put to work immediately in an effort to meet the minimal epidemic needs for poliomyelitis by the summer of 1953. The request by the ODM to the Red Cross followed.

Experiments Effective

During the past year two experiments conducted at Provo, Utah, and Houston, Tex., under the auspices of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis prover the effectiveness of this treatment. The Red Cross provided the gamma globulin used in these experiments without cost.

The Red Cross will not allocate or distribute the gamma globulin. Since the amount of globulin needed will far exceed the expected supply, the ODM has requested the National Research Council to consult with appropriate professional, industrial, and governmental groups to determine the most feasible and equitable method of allocation and distribution in time for the next polio season. The Red Cross will furnish its total supply of gamma globulin to the allocation agency without charge for the product in keeping with the policy now governing its distribution of blood and blood products.

Mrs. Adams, Ulster county chairman pointed out that Red Cross gamma globulin in the amount of 162 vials of 2cc each have been distributed to local physicians for the treatment of measles during the past year.

Admits Store Theft

New York, Dec. 12 (Special)—Mary Oakes, 55, of Ellenville, pleaded guilty Friday in Special Sessions Court here to a charge of stealing a quantity of cheap jewelry and cosmetics from McCreery's department store here on Monday. EISENHOWER'S TRIP TO KOREA

Not until General Eisenhower has thoroughly digested the many things he learned in Korea will America and the world know what his specific plans are for that battle-torn land.

But his preliminary conclusions are important. He made plain there will be no U. S. withdrawal from Korean soil so long as the issue stands in doubt. "We are here to see it through."

At the other extreme, he indicated it is his wish to avoid the "grave risk of enlarging the war."

Yet his rejection of either withdrawal or a widening of the conflict does not mean he is resigned to endless stalemate on the present pattern. Said the general: "Much can be done to improve our position. Much will be done."

Eagerly all Americans and all free men will be waiting to discover what Eisenhower means by those words. Through them runs the fragile thread of hope.

But while they are waiting, they may reflect with satisfaction upon the courage and selfless attention to duty of the man who holds this hope.

Eisenhower in Korea was more than a politician carrying out a campaign pledge. He was, of course, his old military self, appraising the battle scene with keen eye.

More than that, he was a man teaching himself, under pressure, how to become a statesman. Without endeavoring to evaluate the whole Far East, he sought to place Korea in its political setting, to see it not just as America views it but as the other UN countries and the peoples of Asia look upon it.

He was sharply conscious of the danger of casual or irresponsible comment, especially since he will not be President for more than a month. He came to see and to listen, not to talk.

He covered more than half the width of the fighting front, though he never drew closer to combat zones than three miles.

From the ordinary fighting man up through divisional commanders to the top brass, Eisenhower heard the detailed story of the war. From President Syngman Rhee of Korea, from Maj. Gen. Chase of the U. S. Military Mission to Formosa (Nationalist China), he had word of other phases of the Korean and Far Eastern problem.

Almost to the point of forgetting the diplomatic niceties, Eisenhower focused on finding out the facts.

There will be those at home who will say he could have learned as much by a visit to the Pentagon. They know little of the nature of the war—or of human nature. For even if the general's trip produced not a single new idea for settling or advancing the war, it would have been justified for the great lift it gave American and UN soldiers struggling in the harsh sub-zero of a third Korean war winter.

Men who understand war, or any other major problem, know there is no substitute for first-hand study, especially if a man can bring an expert's eye to the scene. For Ike, this trip was more than a campaign promise fulfilled. It was a necessity for him, both as a general and as a new-born politician who deeply wants to serve his people.

By going to Korea, Eisenhower has given top place to the problem that is highest in the minds and hearts of all free men these days. He has risen to the measure of his responsibilities and has taken the first broad stride toward providing America and the free world with the kind of dynamic leadership it so sorely needs.

Food now rates second to taxes in money required. We eat one and try to stomach the other.

Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, who died recently in Rome at the age of 92, was one of the last living statesmen who shaped the policy of Europe during the first world war. Orlando first entered the Italian Parliament in 1898 and in 1915 be became Premier. At the truce talks after World War I he represented Italy and aroused the opposition of the idealistic Woodrow Wilson who was attempting to arrange a just and lasting peace while some of his colleagues were working only for the immediate good of their respective countries.

To argue a point is anyone's privilege, but to disagree without being disagreeable is an often missing ability.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

SOVIET ANTI-SEMITISM

The recent official murder of 11 Czechoslovakian Communists who were Jews represents no new departure in Marxian thinking. Marxism has always been anti-Jewish, as it has been anti-Catholic, anti-Protestant, anti-Moslem. Marxism is opposed to all forms of religion. When a Jew or a Christian or a Moslem is a Marxist, he disassociates himself from the faith of his fathers.

Although Karl Marx was born of Jewish parents who had been converted to Christianity, he was violently anti-Semitic. His article, "The Jewish Question," contains such a sentence as this:

"The emancipation of the Jews is in the last analysis the emancipation of mankind from Jewry."

It is true that a number of Jews were among the founders of the Bolshevik state in Russia. Stalin has killed them, until today only one remains in the Presidium, Lazar Kaganovitch.

During the Hitler-Stalin alliance period, Stalin got rid of his most capable minister of foreign affairs, Maxim Litvinov, because he was a Jew and therefore objectionable to Hitler.

In the philosophy of Marxism and in the Leninist-Stalinist interpretation of that philosophy, no individual can have a philosophic position, a religious faith, an approach to problems which differs from the declared attitude of the Soviet hierarchy. Stalin himself describes this position in his book, "Foundations of Leninism," which is the Bible of the Communists throughout the world:

"The Party must first of all constitute the vanguard of the working class. The Party must absorb all the best elements of the working class, their experience, their revolutionary spirit and their unbounded devotion to the cause of the proletariat. But in order that it may really be the vanguard, the Party must be armed with a revolutionary theory, with a knowledge of the laws of the movement, with a knowledge of the laws of revolution. Without this it will be impotent to guide the struggle of the proletariat and to lead the proletariat. The Party cannot be a real Party if it limits itself to registering what the masses of the working class think or experience, if it drags along at the tail of the spontaneous movement, if it does not know how to overcome the inertia and the political indifference of the spontaneous movement, or if it cannot rise above the transient interests of the proletariat, if it cannot raise the masses to the level of the class interests of the proletariat. The Party must take its stand at the head of the working class, it must see ahead of the working class, lead the proletariat and not trail behind the spontaneous movement. . . ."

In other words, the Party sets the pace and rejects deviations. Those who cannot go along must be purged and, if necessary, killed. The process of purging and killing is continuous in Communist parties throughout the world.

When in 1929, Stalin decided that the American Communist Party must not be led by Jews, he actually arrested Jay Lovestone and Ben Gitlow, then the leaders of that party in America, and held them prisoner until he could reorganize the American Party. Earl Browder, after years of hard work and unparalleled loyalty to Russia, was purged and driven from the Communist Party when the line changed from cooperation with the United States to the cold war.

The reason for the purge of Jews from the Communist Party in Rumania and Czechoslovakia—and it will be done all over the world—is the new position that Stalin is taking of weaning the Arab states from the United States. The Arabs possess oil; but more, they hold a strategic position in the Moslem world throughout the Near East and in North Africa from Cairo to Casablanca. Russia is now infiltrating all Arab countries as part of the cold war.

Stalin therefore makes Jews, Zionists and the state of Israel the target for special enmity. He declares Israel to be an American satellite and Zionism an American weapon of war. If the Arabs fall for this propaganda, he will first move into Iran and then into Iraq, Syria, Saudi Arabia, Jordan, and Egypt.

This is a very serious problem for the United States because if Stalin captures Arab oil, our position, and that of our allies in the Mediterranean and Southern Europe, becomes imperilled. A new move has been made on the chess board of the permanent war.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

GLANDS REGULATE BODY PROCESSES

As we think about the various organs of the body, most of us immediately think of the heart, the stomach, the liver, lungs, intestines and others, but may not think of the glands of the body and how they regulate the rate at which the organs, such as the heart and stomach do their work — the beat of the heart, the movements of the stomach, the action of the digestive processes. We fail to realize how the proper amount of juice of these glands pouring into the blood means good health, whereas too much juice or not enough juice can change our whole physical appearance, our mental and emotional stability and our whole outlook on life.

If, for example, we study or think of the thyroid gland in the neck, we know that if it is pouring out enough juice into the blood our physical appearance is normal, not too fat or too lean, not over-active or under-active, not over-nervous or under-nervous (phlegmatic). We know that if over-active, the disease known as goiter is present and all body processes working so fast that the heart and nerves may wear out if all or part of the thyroid gland is not removed.

On the other hand, if the thyroid gland is under-active, not pouring enough thyroid juice into the blood, the individual "slows up" physically and mentally and puts on excess fat. When the slowing up process becomes advanced, the disease known as cretinism occurs and thyroid extract must be given daily to stimulate the thyroid gland to more activity.

Now when overactivity is present, there is goiter and underactivity, cretinism, and these two diseases are immediately recognized by the physician. However, when there is just a slight or small degree of inactivity present but not the complete disease of cretinism, the patient and family may just consider the individual as a little slow and do or think little about it.

In Geriatrics, the medical journal for aging men and women, Drs. S. T. Kimble and E. J. Stieglitz state that underactivity of the thyroid gland may be responsible for many symptoms attributed to aging in the elderly. Physical fatigue, mental apathy or slowness, inability to stand the cold and drying of skin and hair are commonest complaints associated with underactivity of thyroid gland. From 1 grain or less per day of dry thyroid extract, dosage is increased gradually until the symptoms disappear.

But It Never Seems to Get Any Further Than This!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — General Eisenhower, who worked with and under Franklin Roosevelt all during World War 2, is taking a leaf from FDR's book.

Roosevelt not only got away on a cruiser or yacht three or four times a year, but usually took members of the cabinet with him. It gave him a chance both to rest and consider long-range problems. Eisenhower also plans frequent rests from the wear and tear of office grind. While at NATO in Paris he tried to spend at least part of every afternoon on the golf course. This, and a fairly rigid diet, kept him in good shape.

Meanwhile, the present mid-Pacific cruiser conferences, according to close advisers, have four objectives:

A Decision on Korea has to be formulated almost right away. Even though Eisenhower isn't President yet, his general views will be honored by the Truman administration. And if there is to be any kind of offensive next spring, the supply lines have to start rolling almost immediately.

Get Acquainted with the Cabinet—Most of his cabinet Ike has met only once or twice. They need to get acquainted. Some domestic problems, such as taxes and budget, will be discussed; also secretary-to-be of the Interior Douglas McKay is in charge of the Pacific islands. That's one reason he was invited.

Plan Some Speeches and Prepare for Some TV Appearances—This was the main reason C. D. Jackson of Fortune Magazine, head of the campaign speechwriters, and Emmett Hughes, another speech-writer, were sent for. Eisenhower will have to make some TV and radio statements shortly after his arrival back in the U. S.; also has major speeches to think about for the inauguration period.

4. Major Foreign Policy—It's sometimes easier to formulate long-range policy when you are away from it. And Eisenhower now has a chance to debate with his new secretary of state the most important part of our entire foreign policy—the fact that the heart of the Korean War, as the heart of most of our troubles, lies in Moscow.

Taft's Throat

After Senator Taft issued his historic blast against Gen. Eisenhower's appointment of Martin Durkin as secretary of labor Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon's independent Republican, happened to meet Mark Trice, GOP secretary of the Senate.

"Would you like me to recommend a good political divorce lawyer?" Wisecracked Morse, who broke with Eisenhower over the Morningside Heights "marriage" with Taft.

Trice, who has been a strong Taft supporter, shook his head ruefully.

"Our boy," he said, "certainly cut his own throat."

Adlai and Harry

Here are some of the things that happened between President Truman and Governor Stevenson during their confidential strategy meeting last week.

Actually one of the most important things occurred not at the White House but between a group of southern senators who are working backstage to take the Democratic party away from Stevenson and run it from the Senate.

To this end, they have been telephoning various Democratic leaders around the country friendly to Sen. Richard Russell to urge him as national leader. However, they don't want to start a full-fledged campaign until after Sen. Lyndon Johnson is made Senate leader, because they fear northern Democrats would balk at a Texan for Senate leader, if they knew Russell, a Georgian, was being groomed as national leader.

Stevenson had heard of the southern strategy before he went to the White House, and talked it over with Truman. Here are some of the things they decided:

Stevenson, not Truman is to be the party's leader as far as the National Committee is concerned. This was tacit recognition of the fact that Truman has a lot of ill-will in the south.

Stevenson told Truman he would come back to Washington after Congress reconvenes and visit with Democrats on Capitol Hill. He wants to get on personal terms with senators and congressman. What they do in the next four years will be all-important to the Democratic party, Stevenson believes, and he wants to have a hand in it.

O'Mahoney for Chairman

Stevenson is anxious to find a national chairman who can bridge any gap between northern and southern Democratic senators, and believes Sen. Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming is the most likely choice. Sen. Bill Fulbright of Arkansas has already sounded out about taking the job, and he seems interested.

Stevenson told the President that he wants to keep Steve Mitchell as national chairman for the time being in recognition of his hard work during the campaign. He said it was only fair to give Mitchell a chance to prove himself; also he, Stevenson, felt personally responsible for the campaign deficit and wanted Mitchell to remain until it's cleared up.

The governor told Truman he wanted to take a trip around the world to get reacquainted with foreign problems, though he will visit with Congress first.

Adlai emphasized that he didn't want anyone to get the idea that he was personally ambitious and already starting to run in 1956. For this reason, he said he had vetoed any idea of regular television reports to the nation and he would not make political speeches unless major issues came up. If any Democratic candidate invited him to speak during the 1954 congressional race, however, he said he would accept, though not seek, such invitations.

Today in Washington

President Truman Seems to Have Lost His Post-Election Mellowness.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 12—The mellow mood of President Truman after the election—the promise to be tolerant and let the new administration get started before engaging in any criticism—seems to have ended even before inauguration day.

Mr. Truman made a bitter attack not only on the President-elect—calling his Korean trip a piece of campaign demagoguery—but he accused Gen. MacArthur of failing in military etiquette when he didn't go immediately to the White House on his arrival in Washington from Tokyo in April 1951.

Just who was guilty of violating "etiquette" is not difficult to establish. Gen. MacArthur, after having remained on active duty longer than any other high officer—he fought continuously through World War 2 and served as America's top representative in occupied Japan, doing what everyone concedes was a commendable job—suddenly learned by radio that he had been dismissed from all his posts.

Not an opportunity was given Gen. MacArthur to say farewell to his troops. No chance was afforded the Far Eastern commander to come home for a personal conference with the President of the United States before a removal order was issued. All the rules of courtesy in military life and all that might be termed good manners between a President of the United States and a man who had been a gallant soldier in two world wars were brushed aside. The ignominy of that occurrence cannot be erased by a new charge of broken etiquette because the deposed general, who was invited to address Congress, didn't come hat in hand to cringe before the President while he was in Washington. If Mr. Truman had desired to see the general, there would have been no question about obedience to such a request.

But the record made by the joint hearings of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and the Senate Armed Services Committee is clear. It shows that Mr. Truman never even advised the members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff that he intended summarily to dismiss General MacArthur. The late Admiral Sherman, chief of naval operations, told this correspondent that the first he knew of the decision was when he read it in the newspapers on the morning it was announced, though he had been in on some of the discussions before the decision was reached.

When a President of the United States arbitrarily deposes a military commander without obtaining a definite recommendation from his own joint chiefs of staff and when he does so primarily because of a political motivation, no case can be made for lack of courtesy on the part of the victim of his "purge."

For the record shows that nobody in the joint chiefs and nobody in the White House did a single thing about suggesting discipline of MacArthur for his views on military matters or on how to handle the Far Eastern problem until the general happened to write a letter to Joseph W. Martin, House Republican leader—a letter not intended for publication—in which a question asked by the minority leader was answered. Within five days the general was removed.

The legal right of members of Congress to ask questions of commanders or enlisted men on active duty is unchallenged. Congress is a coordinate branch of the government with the executive. When a member of Congress, occupying a post of leadership, asks for information that doesn't involve the national security, as was the case in this instance, he has a right to be given the data he requests.

Mr. Truman fired Gen. MacArthur and then sought to build up a case against the general. Administration witnesses came to bolster up the Truman side of the controversy, and it is a matter of record that the Pentagon gave garbled and overcondensed messages to the committee which did not tell all the facts about the Korean situation.

For one thing, the fact that the administration tried to jockey Gen. MacArthur into a position of withdrawing our troops from Korea in December 1950, so that the onus would be placed on him, has never been emphasized, though the file of messages, finally introduced in the record after prodding by Senator Knowland, shows it plainly.

Mr. Truman says he traveled to Wake Island only to get "misinformation," and he accuses Gen. MacArthur of failing to be aware of the intention of the Communist Chinese to enter the war. It so happens that the general never has been in the confidence of Communists anywhere, though there are Alger Hisses and others who have been close to the State Department who knew more about Communist intentions than Gen. MacArthur. There were plenty of agencies of the government whose duty it was to learn enemy intentions, and it seems a bit far-fetched for Mr. Truman to blame Gen. MacArthur for not knowing a decision arrived at in Moscow to let China enter the Korean War.

History will not be rewritten by Mr. Truman's bitter charges. He is spending his last days in the White House in a way that he will ultimately regret. If ever there was a time for him to be tolerant, as he views the enormous vote against him cast in the last election, it is in the trying weeks between now and the time the new President takes over and tries to clean up the messed-up situation left him by the preceding administration.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Some of us are sure to be scuffed, skinned and bloodied up in attacking the parasites of our Civil Service and other phases of public employment. But the job has to be done and I invite a salute to Idaho Statesman, of Boise, which was threatened with a boycott for exposing a racket whereby employees of the Reclamation Service, all living on the taxpayers' taxes, enjoy discounts on retail goods for which their neighbors in Idaho, who have to support them, pay full price. Some of these neighbors of course draw less pay than the privileged parasites who get the discounts.

The Statesman's campaign began last winter. Among other items it printed a form letter from a bund of Reclamation Service employes, bearing the mimeographed signature "E. L. White, chairman, welfare committee." The letter said "Here are a few firms to add to your discount buying list. These people have been anxious to get on our list for several months now." Three firms were listed, Easton's Service Stations, Quinn Furniture Co., and R. H. Wahle, a general store.

Easton offered discounts of two cents a gallon on gasoline; five cents a quart on oil and from 10 to 11 per cent on tires, tubes, batteries and "accessories."

White's letter to the reclamation parasites urged them to give Easton's "a try."

Quinn Furniture Company offered discounts of from 20 to 30 per cent.

Another company offered new items on its discount list. These were wading pools for children, cigarette lighters, watches, lawnmowers, gasoline stoves, electric clocks and typewriters.

John Corlett, the reporter on the Crusade, said the local employees of the Veterans Administration also had an "association" and enjoyed similar advantages over the citizens whose taxes pay their salaries. He had been unable so far to get a full discount list from the Reclamation Employes' Association. He said J. Lyle Cunningham, the acting regional director, told him the merchants themselves asked him to suppress the list. The merchants in the conspiracy were afraid that the basic, productive population of the state and the whole general region would resent this discrimination against them in favor of a grasshopper plague of payroll bureaucrats who despoil every countryside they light upon, degrading the social and moral standards of the people, and chiseling and conniving for advantages.

Corlett wrote that the discount ranged from five to 33 per cent for both the Reclamation Service and Veterans Administration but said that facts were not easily verified because all concerned were secretive.

Earle C. Reynolds, the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, told Corlett that the retail merchants committee opposed the discount racket.

Now we go over into the statesman's editorial reactions.

"Since the New Deal got under full steam and spread its power through the establishment of an endless number of bureaus, the word 'bureaucrat' has become a common form of political abuse of all government employes," one editorial began. "The Statesman uses the word but never without a realization that it includes many a worthy federal employe on a necessary job."

I like to make that stipulation, too, but it seems to make only a faint impression. Even the few worthy public employes are inflamed to anger by the professional parasites who pass a clipping around a bureau for signatures under a typewritten slogan: "Look what this rat says about us! Boycott the Daily ———."

"Included in the federal bureaucracy however," the Statesman said, "are many worthless, useless political scum, who have neither honesty nor principle. We have experienced this situation as follows:

"Indirectly, we are told, if the Statesman publishes the personnel and payroll lists of the Reclamation Bureau or the Veterans Administration, the newspaper will be boycotted. The employes will take such steps as establishing cooperatives to withhold their trade from Boise merchants. As you would imagine, this spineless bureaucrat took careful steps to

Q—What did the paddle dolls of the Egyptians have no legs?

A—Paddle dolls are perhaps the oldest dolls. They were made by the Egyptians 3000 years ago and were so called because they were made from thin pieces of board carved in the shape of canoe paddles. They were put in the tombs of the dead to keep them company and were never used as playthings.

EISENHOWER'S TRIP TO KOREA

Not until General Eisenhower has thoroughly digested the many things he learned in Korea will America and the world know what his specific plans are for that battle-torn land.

But his preliminary conclusions are important. He made plain there will be no U. S. withdrawal from Korean soil so long as the issue stands in doubt. "We are here to see it through."

At the other extreme, he indicated it is his wish to avoid the "grave risk of enlarging the war."

Yet his rejection of either withdrawal or a widening of the conflict does not mean he is resigned to endless stalemate on the present pattern. Said the general: "Much can be done to improve our position. Much will be done."

Eagerly all Americans and all free men will be waiting to discover what Eisenhower means by those words. Through them runs the fragile thread of hope.

But while they are waiting, they may reflect with satisfaction upon the courage and selfless attention to duty of the man who holds this hope.

Eisenhower in Korea was more than a politician carrying out a campaign pledge. He was, of course, his old military self, appraising the battle scene with keen eye.

More than that, he was a man teaching himself, under pressure, how to become a statesman. Without endeavoring to evaluate the whole Far East, he sought to place Korea in its political setting, to see it not just as America views it but as the other UN countries and the peoples of Asia look upon it.

He was sharply conscious of the danger of casual or irresponsible comment, especially since he will not be President for more than a month. He came to see and to listen, not to talk.

He covered more than half the width of the fighting front, though he never drew closer to combat zones than three miles.

From the ordinary fighting man up through divisional commanders to the top brass, Eisenhower heard the detailed story of the war. From President Syngman Rhee of Korea, from Maj. Gen. Chase of the U. S. Military Mission to Formosa (Nationalist China), he had word of other phases of the Korean and Far Eastern problem.

Almost to the point of forgetting the diplomatic niceties, Eisenhower focused on finding out the facts.

There will be those at home who will say he could have learned as much by a visit to the Pentagon. They know little of the nature of the war—or of human nature. For even if the general's trip produced not a single new idea for settling or advancing the war, it would have been justified for the great lift it gave American and UN soldiers struggling in the harsh sub-zero of a third Korean war winter.

Men who understand war, or any other major problem, know there is no substitute for first-hand study, especially if a man can bring an expert's eye to the scene. For Ike, this trip was more than a campaign promise fulfilled. It was a necessity for him, both as a general and as a new-born politician who deeply wants to serve his people.

By going to Korea, Eisenhower has given top place to the problem that is highest in the minds and hearts of all free men these days. He has risen to the measure of his responsibilities and has taken the first broad stride toward providing America and the free world with the kind of dynamic leadership it so sorely needs.

Food now rates second to taxes in money required. We eat one and try to stomach the other.

Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, who died recently in Rome at the age of 92, was one of the last living statesmen who shaped the policy of Europe during the first world war. Orlando first entered the Italian Parliament in 1898 and in 1915 be became Premier. At the truce talks after World War I he represented Italy and aroused the opposition of the idealistic Woodrow Wilson who was attempting to arrange a just and lasting peace while some of his colleagues were working only for the immediate good of their respective countries.

To argue a point is anyone's privilege, but to disagree without being disagreeable is an often missing ability.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

SOVIET ANTI-SEMITISM

The recent official murder of 11 Czechoslovakian Communists who were Jews represents no new departure in Marxian thinking. Marxism has always been anti-Jewish, as it has been anti-Catholic, anti-Protestant, anti-Moslem. Marxism is opposed to all forms of religion. When a Jew or a Christian or a Moslem is a Marxist, he disassociates himself from the faith of his fathers.

Although Karl Marx was born of Jewish parents who had been converted to Christianity, he was violently anti-Semitic. His article, "The Jewish Question," contains such a sentence as this:

"The emancipation of the Jews is in the last analysis the emancipation of mankind from Jewry."

It is true that a number of Jews were among the founders of the Bolshevik state in Russia. Stalin has killed them, until today only one remains in the Presidium, Lazar Kaganovitch.

During the Hitler-Stalin alliance period, Stalin got rid of his most capable minister of foreign affairs, Maxim Litvinov, because he was a Jew and therefore objectionable to Hitler.

In the philosophy of Marxism and in the Leninist-Stalinist interpretation of that philosophy, no individual can have a philosophic position, a religious faith, an approach to problems which differs from the declared attitude of the Soviet hierarchy. Stalin himself describes this position in his book, "Foundations of Leninism," which is the Bible of the Communists throughout the world:

"The Party must first of all constitute the vanguard of the working class. The Party must absorb all the best elements of the working class, their experience, their revolutionary spirit and their unbounded devotion to the cause of the proletariat. But in order that it may really be the vanguard, the Party must be armed with a revolutionary theory, with a knowledge of the laws of the movement, with a knowledge of the laws of revolution. Without this it will be impotent to guide the struggle of the proletariat and to lead the proletariat. The Party cannot be a real Party if it limits itself to registering what the masses of the working class think or experience, if it drags along at the tail of the spontaneous movement, if it does not know how to overcome the inertia and the political indifference of the spontaneous movement, or if it cannot rise above the transient interests of the proletariat, if it cannot raise the masses to the level of the class interests of the proletariat. The Party must take its stand at the head of the working class, it must see ahead of the working class, lead the proletariat and not trail behind the spontaneous movement. . . ."

In other words, the Party sets the pace and rejects deviations. Those who cannot go along must be purged and, if necessary, killed. The process of purging and killing is continuous in Communist parties throughout the world.

When in 1929, Stalin decided that the American Communist Party must not be led by Jews, he actually arrested Jay Lovestone and Ben Gitlow, then the leaders of that party in America, and held them prisoner until he could reorganize the American Party. Earl Browder, after years of hard work and unparalleled loyalty to Russia, was purged and driven from the Communist Party when the line changed from cooperation with the United States to the cold war.

The reason for the purge of Jews from the Communist Party in Rumania and Czechoslovakia—and it will be done all over the world—is the new position that Stalin is taking of weaning the Arab states from the United States. The Arabs possess oil; but more, they hold a strategic position in the Moslem world throughout the Near East and in North Africa from Cairo to Casablanca. Russia is now infiltrating all Arab countries as part of the cold war.

Stalin therefore makes Jews, Zionists and the state of Israel the target for special enmity. He declares Israel to be an American satellite and Zionism an American weapon of war. If the Arabs fall for this propaganda, he will first move into Iran and then into Iraq, Syria, Saudi Arabia, Jordan, and Egypt.

This is a very serious problem for the United States because if Stalin captures Arab oil, our position, and that of our allies in the Mediterranean and Southern Europe, becomes imperilled. A new move has been made on the chess board of the permanent war.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

GLANDS REGULATE BODY PROCESSES

As we think about the various organs of the body, most of us immediately think of the heart, the stomach, the liver, lungs, intestines and others, but may not think of the glands of the body and how they regulate the rate at which the organs, such as the heart and stomach do their work — the beat of the heart, the movements of the stomach, the action of the digestive processes. We fail to realize how the proper amount of juice of these glands pouring into the blood means good health, whereas too much juice or not enough juice can change our whole physical appearance, our mental and emotional stability and our whole outlook on life.

If, for example, we study or think of the thyroid gland in the neck, we know that if it is pouring out enough juice into the blood our physical appearance is normal, not too fat or too lean, not over-active or under-active, not over-nervous or under-nervous (phlegmatic). We know that if over-active, the disease known as goiter is present and all body processes working so fast that the heart and nerves may wear out if all or part of the thyroid gland is not removed.

On the other hand, if the thyroid gland is under-active, not pouring enough thyroid juice into the blood, the individual "slows up" physically and mentally and puts on excess fat. When the slowing up process becomes advanced, the disease known as cretinism occurs and thyroid extract must be given daily to stimulate the thyroid gland to more activity.

Now when overactivity is present, there is goiter and underactivity, cretinism, and these two diseases are immediately recognized by the physician. However, when there is just a slight or small degree of inactivity present but not the complete disease of cretinism, the patient and family may just consider the individual as a little slow and do or think little about it.

In Geriatrics, the medical journal for aging men and women, Drs. S. T. Kimble and E. J. Stieglitz state that underactivity of the thyroid gland may be responsible for many symptoms attributed to aging in the elderly. Physical fatigue, mental apathy or slowness, inability to stand the cold and drying of skin and hair are commonest complaints associated with underactivity of thyroid gland. From 1 grain or less per day of dry thyroid extract, dosage is increased gradually until the symptoms disappear.

But It Never Seems to Get Any Further Than This!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — General Eisenhower, who worked with and under Franklin Roosevelt all during World War 2, is taking a leaf from FDR's book.

Roosevelt not only got away on a cruiser or yacht three or four times a year, but usually took members of the cabinet with him. It gave him a chance both to rest and consider long-range problems. Eisenhower also plans frequent rests from the wear and tear of office grind. While at NATO in Paris he tried to spend at least part of every afternoon on the golf course. This, and a fairly rigid diet, kept him in good shape.

Meanwhile, the present mid-Pacific cruiser conferences, according to close advisers, have four objectives:

A Decision on Korea has to be formulated almost right away. Even though Eisenhower isn't President yet, his general views will be honored by the Truman administration. And if there is to be any kind of offensive next spring, the supply lines have to start rolling almost immediately.

Get Acquainted with the Cabinet—Most of his cabinet Ike has met only once or twice. They need to get acquainted. Some domestic problems, such as taxes and budget, will be discussed; also secretary-to-be of the Interior Douglas McKay is in charge of the Pacific islands. That's one reason he was invited.

Plan Some Speeches and Prepare for Some TV Appearances—This was the main reason C. D. Jackson of Fortune Magazine, head of the campaign speech-writers, and Emmett Hughes, another speech-writer, were sent for. Eisenhower will have to make some TV and radio statements shortly after his arrival back in the U. S.; also has major speeches to think about for the inauguration period.

4. Major Foreign Policy—It's sometimes easier to formulate long-range policy when you are away from it. And Eisenhower now has a chance to debate with his new secretary of state the most important part of our entire foreign policy—the fact that the heart of the Korean War, as the heart of most of our troubles, lies in Moscow.

President Truman Seems to Have Lost His Post-Election Mellowness.

Washington, Dec. 12—The mellow mood of President Truman after the election—the promise to be tolerant and let the new administration get started before engaging in any criticism—seems to have ended even before inauguration day.

When a member of Congress, occupying a post of leadership, asks for information that doesn't involve the national security, as was the case in this instance, he has a right to be given the data he requests.

Mr. Truman fired Gen. MacArthur and then sought to build up a case against the general. Administration witnesses came to bolster up the Truman side of the controversy, and it is a matter of record that the Pentagon gave garbled and overcondensed messages to the committee which did not tell all the facts about the Korean situation.

For one thing, the fact that the administration tried to jockey Gen. MacArthur into a position of withdrawing our troops from Korea in December 1950, so that the onus would be placed on him, has never been emphasized, though the file of messages, finally introduced in the record after prodding by Senator Knowland, shows it plainly.

Mr. Truman says he traveled to Wake Island only to get "misinformation," and he accuses Gen. MacArthur of failing to be aware of the intention of the Communist Chinese to enter the war. It so happens that the general never has been in the confidence of Communists anywhere, though there are Alger Hisses and others who have been close to the State Department who knew more about Communist intentions than Gen. MacArthur. There were plenty of agencies of the government whose duty it was to learn enemy intentions, and it seems a bit far-fetched for Mr. Truman to blame Gen. MacArthur for not knowing a decision arrived at in Moscow to let China enter the Korean War.

History will not be rewritten by Mr. Truman's bitter charges. He is spending his last days in the White House in a way that he will ultimately regret. If ever there was a time for him to be tolerant, as he views the enormous vote against him cast in the last election, it is in the trying weeks between now and the time the new President takes over and tries to clean up the messed-up situation left him by the preceding administration.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Some of us are sure to be scuffed, skinned and bloodied up in attacking the parasites of our Civil Service and other phases of public employment. But the job has to be done and I invite a salute to Idaho Statesman, of Boise, which was threatened with a boycott for exposing a racket whereby employees of the Reclamation Service, all living on the taxpayers' taxes, enjoy discounts on retail goods for which their neighbors in Idaho, who have to support them, pay full price. Some of these neighbors of course draw less pay than the privileged parasites who get the discounts.

The Statesman's campaign began last winter. Among other items it printed a form letter from a bund of Reclamation Service employes, bearing the mimeographed signature "E. L. White, chairman, welfare committee." The letter said "Here are a few firms to add to your discount buying list. These people have been anxious to get on our list for several months now." Three firms were listed, Easton's Service Stations, Quinn Furniture Co., and R. H. Wahle, a general store.

Easton offered discounts of two cents a gallon on gasoline; five cents a quart on oil and from 10 to 11 per cent on tires, tubes, batteries and "accessories."

White's letter to the reclamation parasites urged them to give Easton's "a try."

Quinn Furniture Company offered discounts of from 20 to 30 per cent.

Another company offered new items on its discount list. These were wading pools for children, cigarette lighters, watches, lawnmowers, gasoline stoves, electric clocks and typewriters.

John Corlett, the reporter on the Crusade, said the local employees of the Veterans Administration also had an "association" and enjoyed similar advantages over the citizens whose taxes pay their salaries. He had been unable so far to get a full discount list from the Reclamation Employes' Association. He said J. Lyle Cunningham, the acting regional director, told him the merchants themselves asked him to suppress the list. The merchants in the conspiracy were afraid that the basic, productive population of the state and the whole general region would resent this discrimination against them in favor of a grasshopper plague of payroll bureaucrats who despoil every countryside they light upon, degrading the social and moral standards of the people, and chiseling and conniving for advantages.

Corlett wrote that the discount ranged from five to 33 per cent for both the Reclamation Service and Veterans Administration but said that facts were not easily verified because all concerned were secretive.

Earle C. Reynolds, the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, told Corlett that the retail merchants committee opposed the discount racket.

Now we go over into the statesman's editorial reactions.

"Since the New Deal got under full steam and spread its power through the establishment of an endless number of bureaus, the word 'bureaucrat' has become a common form of political abuse of all government employes," one editorial began. "The Statesman uses the word but never without a realization that it includes many a worthy federal employe on a necessary job."

I like to make that stipulation, too, but it seems to make only a faint impression. Even the few worthy public employes are inflamed to anger by the professional parasites who pass a clipping around a bureau for signatures under a typewritten slogan: "Look what this rat says about us! Boycott the Daily ———."

"Included in the federal bureaucracy however," the Statesman said, "are many worthless, useless political scum, who have neither honesty nor principle. We have experienced this situation as follows:

"Indirectly, we are told, if the Statesman publishes the personnel and payroll lists of the Reclamation Bureau or the Veterans Administration, the newspaper will be boycotted. The employes will take such steps as establishing cooperatives to withhold their trade from Boise merchants. As you would imagine, this spineless bureaucrat took careful steps to

Q—What did the paddle dolls of the Egyptians have no legs?

A—Paddle dolls are perhaps the oldest dolls. They were made by the Egyptians 3000 years ago and were so called because they were made from thin pieces of board carved in the shape of canoe paddles. They were put in the tombs of the dead to keep them company and were never used as playthings.

"What do these people fear in publication of their names and salaries? In Idaho we all know the salaries of state officials. We know the salaries of county officials and employes. What embarrassment can come to any federal employe unless his salary is out of order and his qualifications are lacking?

"In publishing the payroll information on the Office of Price Stabilization, the Statesman was unnecessarily tardy. The Arco Advertiser was one weekly that beat us by two weeks. The Daily Idahonian at Moscow (Idaho) beat us by four days."

The Statesman continued to blast the grasshoppers, with occasional regrets to decent, necessary public employes.

This, of course, is only a narrow phase of a devouring menace of bureaucracy. The threatening attitude of their spokesmen, especially of the trade journals dealing solely with pension bills, gimmicks and tricks for the more copious bleeding of the productive worker, is unsuspected until an attack is made on the vast swarm of ticks.

Then they threaten. They abuse. They slander.

Few papers in our press have taken more than polite, desultory notice of the terrible waste. Most of us are more concerned with groping for dishonest platitudes in praise of Martin Durkin, selected to be secretary of labor, and his late colleagues in the debilitating plague of unionism, Philip Murray and William Green.

Store Sales Mount

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—Department store sales, which have benn running below the volume of last year, climbed slightly above the 1951 level last week. This was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board. It said in the four weeks ended Dec. 6 department store sales were 2 per cent under the comparable 1951 period, but that last week they were one per cent above the corresponding week last year. In New York and San Francisco sales last week were below 1951 volume; in the 10 other federal reserve districts they were higher.

Mistakes Are Admitted

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—A Guggenheim Foundation official says the organization's policy is not to give grants to Communists or anyone found to be engaged in subversive activities—but that it has made some mistakes. Henry Allen Moe, executive secretary of the 30 million dollar philanthropic foundation, told House investigators yesterday he did not regard a grant to Thomas Emerson as a mistake despite reports linking the Yale professor with Communist fronts.

In 1873, Mark Twain turned out a book containing not a single word, yet it sold 25,000 copies. It was a self-pasting scrapbook.

Champanier Does Design for Drapes With Cowboy Motif

Some time ago Child Life Wallpaper Company, Inc., a Kingston enterprise, put on the market a novel wallpaper centering around a theme from well known cartoon and movie characters. This wall paper, designed by A. August Champanier, proprietor of the Saxton Fells School of Art in the Burgevin Building, was designed principally for children's rooms and is now being sold nationally.

Recently Champanier designed a matching fabric drapery material to be used in connection with the Child Life wallpaper designs and also intended for use in ranch houses where the modern and rustic type of architecture prevails.

Sold by Wonderly

The new fabric drapery material is designed with characters and scenes well known to Gabby Hayes fans. This new fabric is being sold throughout the United States by drapery and wall paper stores and locally the Gabby Hayes drapery fabric is being sold and distributed by the Wonderly Company, Inc., Wall street store.

On the 48-inch wide material are scenes from the Gabby Hayes realm of activities. There is shown a scene where cowboys are hustling over the corral gate just in advance of a charging bull; chuck wagon scenes, Gabby and two children listening to his story, a scene from branding a calf and groups of cowboys gathered around a camp fire playing a guitar and singing.

Pattern Gives Action

These scenes of the west are repeated every 23 inches to give an overall pattern of outdoor action. The newly designed drapery material is created to serve as a matching fabric to the now very popular Child Life wall papers which Champanier also designed and placed on the market months ago.

Arrangements for supplying the drapery and wall papers have been made through large manufacturing concerns specializing in that type of work, Champanier said.

Surgery Is Scheduled

Santa Monica, Calif., Dec. 12 (AP)—Suffering from a painful diaphragmatic hernia, comedian Red Skelton was scheduled to undergo surgery today at St. John's Hospital. The ailment was diagnosed several days ago. Mrs. Georgia Skelton said her husband appeared jovial yesterday when "he finally made his decision to get it over with as soon as possible." Six of his television shows have been filmed ahead. Friends hoped he would recover in time so that there would be no interruption in the comedian's appearance on the program.

Settlement Made In Zwilling Case

A settlement was reached Thursday in the negligence action brought in Supreme Court before Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth by Jennie Zwilling and Philip Zwilling against the Van Etten & Hogan Trucking Company for damages for injuries which Mrs. Zwilling received when she tripped over a plank on North Front street.

The plank, used to move a safe, had been left unguarded while the men were preparing to move the safe.

Abraham Streifer appeared for plaintiff and Stanley Johnson of Johnson & McCann, Newburgh, appeared for defendants.

Settlement was also reached in another negligence action, Arlene Schwartz against Louis Jacobowitz and another. There being no other case ready for trial until Monday, Justice Elsworth adjourned until 10 a. m. Monday and excused the jurors until that time.

N. LeVan Haver appeared for Schwartz and Turner & Murphy for defendant, Jacobowitz.

Mines in New York state produce about 150,000 tons of talc annually, about half of which is used in making paint filler.

The oldest stake race in the United States is the Travers which first was run at Saratoga in 1864.

Hollis Raps 'Same Old Humpty Dumpties'

Cooperstown, Dec. 12 (AP)—"The same old Humpty Dumpties from the New York metropolitan area" control the state Democratic party, a veteran Democratic leader from Otsego county says.

And the situation will continue "even under the new chairman," Richard H. Balch of Utica, Harold H. Hollis declared last night.

Hollis, secretary of the Otsego County Democratic Committee for the last 15 years, said the party needed a "solid state organization, fully aware of the problems which are faced in the rural organization of a minority party."

"This we do not have and will not have under Mr. Balch," he said.

In Utica, Balch told a newsman: "I regret as fine a Democrat as Harold H. Hollis is complicating the task of uniting the Democratic party for victory."

Dunn Says Flood

basin did not reach its capacity at any time during the flood, and no serious flooding of the lower Esopus creek was reported.

The Onteora Central School, which dismissed its pupils at 11 a. m. Thursday so they could reach home before highways were closed, was reported to be in session today.

Water receded slowly after the peak was reached shortly after 2 p. m., and water remained on the Onteora Trail at Winne's Garage near Mt. Tremper until 9:40 p. m.

Rondout Creek High

The Rondout creek also was reported high later Thursday afternoon and for a time threatened bungalows along the creek in Rosendale. The Springtown road was also reported flooded at one time, and water from the Mombaccus creek inundated Route 209 near Accord, according to a report made to the sheriff's office by Edward Carle of Accord at 5:40 p. m.

A bridge at the Saugerties reservoir was reported under water for a time during the high water period.

Rainfall at Brown Station at the Ashokan Reservoir in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m. today was recorded at 1.88 inches by the New York Water Department. Added to the 1.49 inches which fell in the previous 24 hours and .03 inch which fell before 8 a. m. Wednesday, the total of the storm was 3.40 inches.

Had the percipitation been snow instead of rain, Ulster county today might have been buried under 30 or more inches, some residents pointed out. A "rule of thumb" usually used to convert rainfall to snow is that one inch of rain equals about 10 inches of snow. This gives an approximate indication only, since the proportion varies greatly according to whether the snow is a wet snow or dry snow.

Wainwright Says

detail the odds and hardships faced by the American troops. He said that after the Japanese took the Bataan peninsula they started shelling Corregidor. The Americans, he said, had been on half rations or less.

Had Shaken Morale

"The men were weak and the incessant pounding had shaken their morale somewhat," he said. "I saw no actual cowardice, but a man can't stand any more—that's all there is to it."

He said that even after the American troops on Corregidor ceased firing the Japanese "kept firing all day and all night."

The government yesterday rested its case against Provoo. The former sergeant is charged with assisting his Japanese captors, and with betraying Capt. Burton C. Thomson to his death before Japanese prison camp executioners.

unpaid water rents in the Marlborough Water District amounting to $1,078.92 and also unpaid school taxes amounting to $187,716.61 and it was moved that these sums be assessed against the properties upon which the rental was due, together with interest, and the resolutions were approved.

A resolution was approved asking for printing of the supervisors proceedings. Bids will be opened at 7 p. m. on December 19. Chairman Denniston named on the committee for Printing Proceedings Supervisors Kelsch, Eckert and Bush.

The board voted for consolidation of the City and County Civil Defense councils, as suggested in a letter from Col. Hanstein, county Civil Defense director and also by Sherwood Davis, city director.

The board then adjourned, subject to the call of the chair, to the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital where the annual inspection took place followed by a turkey dinner.

At least one more meeting of the board will be held prior to final adjournment for the year. That date has not been set.

Hanstein Appointed

The board appointed Col. Allan L. Hanstein as director of the consolidated defense council. Col. Hanstein has been director of the county Civil Defense Council since the resignation of Howard C. Shurter, director of the Ulster County Veterans Agency.

Recently a plan for consolidation of the city and county Civil Defense units had been suggested by both Col. Hanstein on behalf of the county and Director Sherwood Davis of the city Civil Defense. It was proposed that the city and county units be made one in order to secure a stronger and more compact unit. In the event of necessity, following a bombing attack, it is believed a better cooperation between city and county would be possible if the entire set up is under one director since both the city and county will have to act in reality as a single unit.

The suggestion that the city be consolidated with the county was made by Director Davis to the common council and Director Hanstein submitted his suggestion for consolidation to the board of supervisors some time ago.

By MRS. WILLIAM JAY

To Present Candle Service Next Sunday

New Paltz, Dec. 12—The traditional candlelight service of the Reformed Church will be presented at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Dec. 14. An organ prelude will be presented at 4:45 p. m.

Milton Ottesen is director of music and Mrs. Ralph Buchanan is in charge of the children's choir. Mrs. Arthur Kurtz is organist. The Rev. Gerret J. Wullschleger will bring the Christmas message.

School Receives Two Volumes From England

New Paltz, Dec. 12—Miss Mildred Cullen sent a gift of two volumes of the Oxford Encyclopedia from England to the Campus School recently. Miss Ruth Walker said that the volumes arrived during the Book Fair and may now be seen in the library. Miss Cullen was the exchange teacher last year from Darlington Training School, County Durham, England. Her pupils of last year have received Christmas cards from her also.

Miss Ruth Walker was the author of an article in a recent issue of a magazine called Elementary English, published by the National Council of Teachers of English. Miss Walker's article, in the October, 1952, issue, was on the subject of Children Helping in the Library. As a reading aid, some children who like to work in the library were provided with suitable jobs, Miss Walker wrote. It built up their confidence and improved their reading, she said.

The Beacon P-TA of the Spring Street School invited Miss Walker to talk to them at their last monthly meeting. This school is moving into a new building and will have a library now. She talked to them on the Place of of the Library in an Elementary School.

One of the classroom activities in progress at the Campus School is a Mitten Tree the third grade children in Miss Jones' room are preparing. The children are engaged in earning money to buy mittens for needy children. They have had a cookie sale, a popcorn sale and will give a puppet show soon. Individually the children are gathering paper to sell. The entire proceeds will buy gay, warm mittens which will be the decorations for their class Christmas tree. Later the mittens will be wrapped and distributed.

Stamford, Conn., Dec. 12 (AP)—Paul W. Brody of Los Angeles reported the theft of about $19,909 worth of photographic equipment from his car which was parked on Franklin street here yesterday. In his report to police, Brady said someone opened his locked vehicle by breaking a side window.

CIO to Seek Test

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP) — The CIO announced last night it will seek an early Supreme Court test of the controversial Taft-Hartley Act provision which allows the government to seek injunctions against some strikes for periods of 80 days. The government prepared to seek such an injunction to end a work stoppage idling 1,500 men at the Dunkirk, N. Y., plant of the American Locomotive Co. It may go to court in Buffalo during the day. Assuming an injunction is granted, CIO General Counsel Arthur J. Goldberg told newsmen, the big labor organization will attack it in the courts. He said the CIO has been looking for an opportunity to challenge that section of the act, and that the American Locomotive case offered the chance.

VA Requirements On New Property Now Stress Quality

F. William Sheehan, officer in charge, of the Veterans Administration contact office at 286 Fair street today announced that minimum property requirements are now in effect on all new construction to be purchased with the aid of VA guaranteed or insured loans.

Public Law 550 (Korean GI Bill) directed that such properties must meet or exceed minimum requirements for planning, construction and general acceptability if constructed after September 14, 1952.

This provision, Sheehan said, does not apply to homes which are completed at least a year before they are purchased with GI loans.

VA minimum requirements, to assure veterans sounder construction, have been mandatory since 1950. However, under the law VA's minimum requirements for land planning and general acceptability were not mandatory, until the enactment of the Korean GI Bill, Sheehan said.

Coupled with minimum construction requirements, VA's code for land planning and general acceptability will be known as VA Minimum Property Requirements.

Considers Locality

VA's requirements for general acceptability are planned to encourage the design of dwelling units which will provide living facilities ordinarily considered desirable in the locality.

Such items as room size, storage space, lighting, ventilation, bathrooms, utility and heater rooms, safety and privacy are considered under general acceptability.

Land planning requirements are designed to encourage the development of new neighborhoods, so located and planned as to provide reasonable standards of comfort, attractive surroundings for the occupants, and a continuing desirability for residential purposes.

VA's standards for land planning pertain to all land developments or building operations involving unimproved or partially improved land, not subject to local ordinances or regulations. These requiremenits cover subdivision location, proper arrangement of street and lots, storm drainage systems, and utilities.

To avoid duplication among Federal agencies, VA has adopted the applicable portions of the Federal Housing Administration's Minimum Property Requirements and Land Planning Bulletin No. 3.

Most builders are familiar with the FHA standards, since they have been building under them for a number of years.

UN secretary general for security council affairs.

Charnow's Testimony

Charnow testified he was a Communist in Washington, D. C., for about a year in 1938. Asked why he joined the party, Charnow said:

"To search for answers to the world's problems. I discovered very quickly it was not the place to find the answers. It was not possible to suggest any ideas differing from the party line."

"If you were in a position to work effectively against communism, would you do it?" asked Committee Counsel Robert Morris.

"I certainly would," said Charnow. "I'm against communism because it is against everything I believe most important in life, beginning with human dignity."

Charnow also said he privately has submitted about a dozen names of Washington, D. C., cell members to the subcommittee and the FBI.

Mrs. Thaler testified she joined the Communist party in 1942 for about a year.

Gave Names To Group

She said she has given the subcommittee the names of those belonging to an all-girl party unit in New York city.

Asked why she joined, Mrs. Thaler replied: "I was stupid. I didn't think it meant anything and I got bored and went away."

Ferguson asked: "Do you believe the Communist party to be subversive in America?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Thaler.

The woman's UN boss, Zinchenko, has been on home leave since last summer and reportedly is ill.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Pat McCarran (D.-Nev.), adjourned the hearings indefinitely at the end of yesterday's testimony. The group has conducted hearings on UN American personnel during the past several weeks.

The subcommittee reportedly will draft an interim report before its membership changes with the new Congress on Jan. 3.

Supervisors, Speakers Praise TB Hospital Management

In the absence of Harry Kaplan, president of the Ulster County Board of Health who was unable to attend the annual inspection of the Tuberculosis Hospital Thursday evening due to a prior commitment, County Attorney Frederick Stang presided at the meeting which followed the inspection and serving of a turkey dinner to the guests.

Stang paid a high compliment to the management of the hospital and told the hospital staff that the board of supervisors was deeply interested in the work of the hospital and the tumor clinic and that the one thing which was paramount in the minds of the board was better health for the people of the county.

Letters of regret were read from President Kaplan, Msgr. Martin J. Drury, a former member of the board of health and Mayor Newkirk, who had a prior engagement.

'Finest in State,' He says

Among those presented was Sheriff Cluett Schantz, a former member of the board of supervisors, who said the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital was considered the finest institution of its kind in the state and he said it was well cared for and efficiently managed.

Dr. Joseph Jacobson, a former director of the hospital was introduced, as was Dr. Milton Grover who is director of the Ulster County Tumor Clinic; Henry York of Saugerties a member of the board of health; Commissioner of Health Dudley W. Hargrave; Dr. Schwartz, superintendent of the Tuberculosis hospital; Supervisor Jesse McHugh of Shawangunk who is the board's representative on the Board of Health; Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt of New Paltz, board of health member; Dr. Robert F. Moseley, board of health member.

Dr. Eugene F. Galvin of Rosendale was unable to attend and Dr. Moseley spoke briefly as senior member of the board of health in place of Dr. Galvin who is the vice-president of the board. Dr. Moseley welcomed the supervisors and extended season's greetings on behalf of the board of health.

Stang Gives History

Attorney Stang reviewed the history of the Tuberculosis Hospital from 1910 when the first "tuberculosis camp" was established off Clifton avenue in a crude system of temporary buildings with Dr. Henry Van Hoevenberg in charge. Dr. Aden C. Gates later became superintendent and he was succeeded by Dr. Raymond Crispell.

Between 1920 and 1930, Stang said, former County Judge Joseph M. Fowler, Dr. Mary Gage-Day and others began to sponsor a movement for a better hospital and as a result in 1930-31 the board of supervisors paved the way for the present tuberculosis hospital by appropriating funds for a building on Golden Hill. The original building and its facilities cost $250,000 and it was paid in two years. Dr. Frederick Holcomb was named superintendent and through the early days of the establishment of the hospital he gave much of his time and efforts to bringing the new institution to its present position.

The hospital was operated by a board of managers of which the Rev. Frank B. Seeley, DD, was president and when the hospital was taken over under the newly-established County Health Department, Dr. Seeley became a member of the board of health and its president. Dr. Holcomb remained with the hospital as its superintendent until it was consolidated with the county health department in 1947.

Dr. Weber served later as superintendent until 1950 when Dr. Joseph Jacobson became director and he served until 1952 when Dr. Herbert F. Schwarts was named director on resignation of Dr. Jacobson.

Credits Cooperation

The excellent reputation of the tuberculosis hospital was referred to by Stang and he said the close cooperation between the board of supervisors and the hospital, tumor clinic and the Ulster County Medical Society has made such a program possible. In the past 20 years tuberculosis, once called the "great killer," had showed a decrease in the county. He said the 56 bed hospital was entirely filled with patients and there was a waiting list but through the care and treatment given by the institution many cases were arrested or cured. The problem of good health was paramount in the minds of the members of the board of supersors and he predicted a continuance of that policy.

Mrs. Mary Weber, who was formerly business manager at the tuberculosis hospital, and is now associated with the county board of health, was introduced to the group.

Chef Henry Geschwinder and staff of assistants was called from the kitchen to "take a bow" and receive the congratulations of the board on the excellent dinner.

There were numerous expressions of satisfaction from board members on the excellent condition of the entire hospital and its facilities.

Kiwanians Honor 19 Past Presidents

Past presidents of the Kingston Kiwanis Club were honored at the club's regular meeting Thursday noon at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The program, in charge of Charles Snyder, was presented with 19 of hte club's past presidents in attendance. Roger H. Loughran, past lieutenant governor, gave a brief address stressing the importance of service.

Lawrence E. Doughty, Newburgh Kiwanian, presented to the Kingston club the traveling drum which was won by the local group as the result of an inter-club meeting contest. The drum, accepted on behalf of the club by William Sheldon, inter-club committee member, contained a check for $305.

Walter Lloyd of Poughkeepsie, "dean" of past lieutenant governors, was also present and gave the Kingston organization a copy of the first issue of the Kiwanis Magazine, dated 1917.

Braden Says . . .

cent Wednesday to the charge of conspiracy to defame Kenny. He and two other men were indicted for allegedly conspiring to bribe Frank (Biffo) De Lorenzo to give testimony to the crime commission to defame the Jersey City mayor. De Lorenzo is a former business agent of Local 1247, International Longshoremen's Association.

In his statement last night, Braden said the governors of New York and New Jersey made a joint announcement in December, 1951, of a bi-state investigation of their common waterfront, inviting "public spirited citizens of the port to assist the investigation."

Braden said he found Kenny's action "all the more astonishing * * * in the face of the specific testimony about himself which has already been presented to the New York State Crime Commission."

A witness before the crime commission on Monday testified that Kenny and his corporation counsel backed the longshoremen's union in a 1949 pier strike. The witness was Leland S. Andrews, a vice president of the American Export Lines.

Kenny twice testified before the commission in executive session—on May 27 and June 13. The invitation letter he received yesterday said he had been scheduled to appear again June 18, but that his attorney, Richard J. Burke, wrote to say the mayor was ill and could not come.

The letter said Burke wrote that he would arrange for Kenny's future appearance when he was "sufficiently recovered to resume." The commission said no such word came from Burke.

Kenny, in declining the invitation yesterday, said he felt he should not appear before any investigating body with which Greene is or has been affiliated."

The Greene indictment alleged that the defendants conspired to pay De Lorenzo to tell the commission Kenny had been pally with slain gangster Charles Yanowsky.

Yanowsky, who was business manager of three ILA locals, was slain July 16, 1948. His body was found near a Clifton, N. J., schoolyard. He had been stabbed a dozen times with an icepick.

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—Edwin A. Locke, Jr., the U. S. ambassador who figured recently in a controversy over aid to the Near East, has submitted his resignation, the State Department said today. President Truman has not yet acted on the resignation, the White House said.

Past presidents of the Kingston Kiwanis Club were honored at the club's regular meeting Thursday noon at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

The program, in charge of Charles Snyder, was presented with 19 of hte club's past presidents in attendance. Roger H. Loughran, past lieutenant governor, gave a brief address stressing the importance of service.

Lawrence E. Doughty, Newburgh Kiwanian, presented to the Kingston club the traveling drum which was won by the local group as the result of an inter-club meeting contest. The drum, accepted on behalf of the club by William Sheldon, inter-club committee member, contained a check for $305.

Walter Lloyd of Poughkeepsie, "dean" of past lieutenant governors, was also present and gave the Kingston organization a copy of the first issue of the Kiwanis Magazine, dated 1917.

Braden Says . . .

cent Wednesday to the charge of conspiracy to defame Kenny. He and two other men were indicted for allegedly conspiring to bribe Frank (Biffo) De Lorenzo to give testimony to the crime commission to defame the Jersey City mayor. De Lorenzo is a former business agent of Local 1247, International Longshoremen's Association.

In his statement last night, Braden said the governors of New York and New Jersey made a joint announcement in December, 1951, of a bi-state investigation of their common waterfront, inviting "public spirited citizens of the port to assist the investigation."

Braden said he found Kenny's action "all the more astonishing * * * in the face of the specific testimony about himself which has already been presented to the New York State Crime Commission."

A witness before the crime commission on Monday testified that Kenny and his corporation counsel backed the longshoremen's union in a 1949 pier strike. The witness was Leland S. Andrews, a vice president of the American Export Lines.

Kenny twice testified before the commission in executive session—on May 27 and June 13. The invitation letter he received yesterday said he had been scheduled to appear again June 18, but that his attorney, Richard J. Burke, wrote to say the mayor was ill and could not come.

The letter said Burke wrote that he would arrange for Kenny's future appearance when he was "sufficiently recovered to resume." The commission said no such word came from Burke.

Kenny, in declining the invitation yesterday, said he felt he should not appear before any investigating body with which Greene is or has been affiliated."

The Greene indictment alleged that the defendants conspired to pay De Lorenzo to tell the commission Kenny had been pally with slain gangster Charles Yanowsky.

Yanowsky, who was business manager of three ILA locals, was slain July 16, 1948. His body was found near a Clifton, N. J., schoolyard. He had been stabbed a dozen times with an icepick.

HIGHLAND

Highland, Dec. 11—Mrs. Thomas Sears had as dinner guests Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnes, Middlehope; Mrs. Frank Baker, Marlborough, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilklow, Highland.

The following Christmas program was arranged by Mrs. Albert Thompson for the meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society Wednesday afternoon in the Presbyterian Church Hall: Singing, O, Come All Ye Faithful; reading, Let's Keep Christmas, written by Peter Marshall and read by Mrs. Thompson; prayer; piano duet, Nazareth, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. N. D. Williams; reading of the Christmas story from the Gospel of St. Luke by Mrs. M. P. Busch; singing, Silent Night; prayer, Mrs. Thompson. Mrs. Franklin Welker, nominating committee, reported a slate consisting of Mrs. Harry Needham, president; Mrs. Victor Salvatore, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Chaplin, assistant; Mrs. Nathan Williams, secretary; Mrs. W. J. Upright, corresponding secretary. The December committee had early in the year given out in the congregation small stockings, asking that one penny be put in for January and as each month came add one more penny. Nearly half of the 100 stockings given out have been returned. Instead of the usual vice-presidents, Mrs. Welker read a list of 12 hostesses: Mrs. Thomas Sears, January; Mrs. S. D. Farnham, February; Mrs. Busch, March; Mrs. Charles Whittaker, April; Mrs. Fred L. Vail, May; Mrs. Champlin, June; Mrs. Upright, July; Mrs. Wilbur Woolsey, August; Mrs. C. W. Rathgeb, September; Mrs. Thompson, October; Mrs. Bertram Cottine, November; Mrs. Edgar Boyce, December. The sunshine chairman had sent out 10 cards during the month. Mrs. Martin Upright will continue to receive magazine subscriptions. A covered dish lunch preceded the meeting with 18 in attendance.

Ralph Dirk and Gustav Schmidt are at Boynton Beach, Fla. where they are building homes.

Mrs. Hubert Elting entertained friends from Claryville on Tuesday.

The wreck on the West Shore caused almost a bottleneck of cars from sightseers getting in as close as possible. The local fire company was called out shortly after the wreck occurred to be ready in case of fire.

Roy E. Clearwater, a nephew of the late DeWitt Clearwater retired from active duty with the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. last week after more than 30 years of active service. Clearwater was a record draftsman in the company's engineering department. His wife is the former Mrs. Grace Feeter DuBois, a former resident. Their home is now in Poughkeepsie.

Several hundred principals and superintendents of public schools will gather in Syracuse Sunday, Dec. 14, for the annual convention of the New York State Association of Secondary School Principals. As a variation in the usual procedure, a number of workshops have been set up for the Monday sessions. William H. Yates, supervising principal of the local Central School will lead a discussion on the types of evaluative material now in use in New York State Central schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Terpening have moved their household effects from Schroon Lake and are now occupying their recently purchased house on Vineyard avenue, the former home of the late Congressman Harcourt J. Pratt.

Trooper and Mrs. Elliott Johnson and son, Billy have left for a three-week vacation in Florida.

President Mrs. Luther Filkins reported Friday at the meeting of the WSCS that three boxes of clothing had been sent to Five Points Mission in New York and that the Frigidaire demonstration had netted $16.50. It was announced that Miss June Thompson, a student at New Paltz State Teachers College, was representing the local Methodist Church at the state meeting of the Student Movement Conference. Mrs. Parker Decker announced the Christmas program for the Sunday school would be December 22 and in place of donations of clothing the pupils were contributing money for work in foreign fields. Mrs. Meredith Turner was appointed greeting committee for this month. Mrs. Charles Baker is in charge of flowers and Miss Minnie Tiel is general chairman to provide the housekeeping committee to act each month. A Christmas stocking was passed for small change to provide small kitchen utensils needed in the church kitchen. Mrs. Harry B. Cotant, Jr. led the worship service using a story, Kid-Lift, from a recent magazine telling of Christmas given children in Korea by marines. A short playlet with Africa as the scene was enacted by Mrs. John F. Wadlin, Mrs. Charles L. DuBois, Mrs. Henry Swift, Mrs. Stanley Jones and daughter Sara. The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Jacob Schuhle, Mrs. Byron Bennett, Mrs. Floyd Mackey, Miss Daisy Perkins.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., Dec. 12—Once in awhile it is well to consider the past. There is an old-time saying—even if unconfirmed—"History is always repeating itself about every 20 years." Let us look back at the stock market "lows" and birth rates" of 20 years ago. The only logical reason for the above old saying is that people "mature" at about 20 years of age. Even this reasoning should not be taken seriously if the same number of people become 20 years of age every year! For this old theory to work, there must be a differential in the maturity rate. We then can apply this theory as one factor determing stock market movements.

Let's Look at the Record

Although a certain percentage of babies and young people die before 20 years of age, it is fair to assume that the same ratios apply to all who reach the age of 20 during these years. The following table gives an approximate idea of what has happened:

Births 1932-1951

1932—2,074,042
1933—2,081,232
1934—2,167,636
1935—2,155,105
1936—2,144,790
1937—2,203,337
1938—2,286,962
1939—2,265,588
1940—2,360,399
1941—2,513,427
1942—2,808,996
1943—2,934,860
1944—2,794,800
1945—2,735,456
1946—3,288,672
1947—3,699,940
1948—3,535,068
1949—3,581,000
1950—3,451,608
1951—3,648,954

As there were fewer born in the early thirties—there will now be fewer marriages and, hence, fewer birth.

The above figures suggest that an abnormally small number are now reaching 20 years of age. Hence, according to this theory, there should be a decline in business, wages, prices, real estate, etc. around 1953. Of course, births are only one factor; but they should have a bearing on stock and bond prices, notwithstanding the recent Republican victories.

Opportunities for Merchants

The above figures also indicate possible optimistic relationship of the birth rates to certain businesses. For instance, sometimes they are bound to cause an increased demand for everything from diapers to toys; while at other times they help real estate and furniture sales. It is important that manufacturers and merchants, as well as parents, should keep this in mind. This increase in business will first appear as the birth wave develops needs for new babies; then in needs for the young children; then the demands of the teenagers; then in needs for the older youths; and finally the needs of adults.

Statistics show that there has been a great increase in older people, due to various causes. Social Security is reducing worry amongst the aged and certainly they all should thank Francis Townsend of California for this. The new drugs, vitamins, etc. have done much to eliminate disease and lengthen life. What penicillin has done to save the lives of pneumonia patients is a story in itself. Finally, the shorter day and the five-day week have protected the older members of our families. Every manufacturer and shopkeeper is getting more business from older people today than ever before.

Outlook for Colleges

Just now, most colleges are operating at a deficit from temporary lack of students, due to the great drop in the birth rate which came eighteen to twenty years ago. These colleges, however, should take heart because the crest of another wave of high birth rates will begin to benefit them a few years hence. Not only will more men and women demand an education, but better economic conditions will give more families the money to provide such.

In connection with birth rates, we must not forget the returning G.I.'s from Korea. These will be given the same rights to a free college education as were provided to the veterans of World War 2. In view of the election of General Eisenhower as our new President, veterans will receive other advantages and compensations, from which many manufacturers and merchants should benefit. Hence, we should watch birth rate figures for both pessimistic and optimistic signals.

Belated Flood Report

Hong Kong (AP) — The Chinese Communist news agency belatedly announced recently that a storm on Sept. 24 hit the Central Yangtse area, flooding 40,000 acres, collapsing 28 dams and affecting 100,000 persons. The report raised speculation here because this is the vulnerable mid-Yangtse-Tungting Lake region where the Chinese Reds claimed they had eliminated flood danger by an elaborate system of dikes, dams and impounding basins. When the Reds announced completion of the project last spring, engineers here said the type of flood-control job described would require up to five years to complete. The Reds said they did it in three months, using "improved Russian methods."

Clever Trick Suggested For Trimming Tree

Want a Yule tree that gives you just about everything but a chorus of "Jingle Bells"? Then string cute little toys and gayly packaged confections in among the tinsel and lights. Your tree is bound to be original and your family will have extra fun seeing things on the tree that they can actually use and enjoy, even after the tree is taken down. Toy cars, space ships, dolls, packages of chewing gum and candy Santas are favorites with clever tree-trimmers.

Bright packages of chewing gum are especially popular with many homemakers because they're neat and inexpensive. And they add a touch of real beauty to any tree with their sparkle and smooth, glistening appearance. Some chewing gum even comes wrapped in traditional red, green and white colors. Just the thing for holiday spirit. Best of all, you needn't worry if little Johnny or Jane picks a package of gum off the tree, because the protective wrappings keeps the gum clean and wholesome, and the youngsters can enjoy the contents without spoiling their appetites.

Clever Trick Suggested For Trimming Tree

Want a Yule tree that gives you just about everything but a chorus of "Jingle Bells"? Then string cute little toys and gayly packaged confections in among the tinsel and lights. Your tree is bound to be original and your family will have extra fun seeing things on the tree that they can actually use and enjoy, even after the tree is taken down. Toy cars, space ships, dolls, packages of chewing gum and candy Santas are favorites with clever tree-trimmers.

Bright packages of chewing gum are especially popular with many homemakers because they're neat and inexpensive. And they add a touch of real beauty to any tree with their sparkle and smooth, glistening appearance. Some chewing gum even comes wrapped in traditional red, green and white colors. Just the thing for holiday spirit. Best of all, you needn't worry if little Johnny or Jane picks a package of gum off the tree, because the protective wrappings keeps the gum clean and wholesome, and the youngsters can enjoy the contents without spoiling their appetites.

Belated Flood Report

Hong Kong (AP) — The Chinese Communist news agency belatedly announced recently that a storm on Sept. 24 hit the Central Yangtse area, flooding 40,000 acres, collapsing 28 dams and affecting 100,000 persons. The report raised speculation here because this is the vulnerable mid-Yangtse-Tungting Lake region where the Chinese Reds claimed they had eliminated flood danger by an elaborate system of dikes, dams and impounding basins. When the Reds announced completion of the project last spring, engineers here said the type of flood-control job described would require up to five years to complete. The Reds said they did it in three months, using "improved Russian methods."

Highland, Dec. 11—Mrs. Thomas Sears had as dinner guests Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnes, Middlehope; Mrs. Frank Baker, Marlborough, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilklow, Highland.

The following Christmas program was arranged by Mrs. Albert Thompson for the meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society Wednesday afternoon in the Presbyterian Church Hall: Singing, O, Come All Ye Faithful; reading, Let's Keep Christmas, written by Peter Marshall and read by Mrs. Thompson; prayer; piano duet, Nazareth, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. N. D. Williams; reading of the Christmas story from the Gospel of St. Luke by Mrs. M. P. Busch; singing, Silent Night; prayer, Mrs. Thompson. Mrs. Franklin Welker, nominating committee, reported a slate consisting of Mrs. Harry Needham, president; Mrs. Victor Salvatore, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Chaplin, assistant; Mrs. Nathan Williams, secretary; Mrs. W. J. Upright, corresponding secretary. The December committee had early in the year given out in the congregation small stockings, asking that one penny be put in for January and as each month came add one more penny. Nearly half of the 100 stockings given out have been returned. Instead of the usual vice-presidents, Mrs. Welker read a list of 12 hostesses: Mrs. Thomas Sears, January; Mrs. S. D. Farnham, February; Mrs. Busch, March; Mrs. Charles Whittaker, April; Mrs. Fred L. Vail, May; Mrs. Champlin, June; Mrs. Upright, July; Mrs. Wilbur Woolsey, August; Mrs. C. W. Rathgeb, September; Mrs. Thompson, October; Mrs. Bertram Cottine, November; Mrs. Edgar Boyce, December. The sunshine chairman had sent out 10 cards during the month. Mrs. Martin Upright will continue to receive magazine subscriptions. A covered dish lunch preceded the meeting with 18 in attendance.

Ralph Dirk and Gustav Schmidt are at Boynton Beach, Fla. where they are building homes.

Mrs. Hubert Elting entertained friends from Claryville on Tuesday.

The wreck on the West Shore caused almost a bottleneck of cars from sightseers getting in as close as possible. The local fire company was called out shortly after the wreck occurred to be ready in case of fire.

Roy E. Clearwater, a nephew of the late DeWitt Clearwater retired from active duty with the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. last week after more than 30 years of active service. Clearwater was a record draftsman in the company's engineering department. His wife is the former Mrs. Grace Feeter-DuBois, a former resident. Their home is now in Poughkeepsie.

Several hundred principals and superintendents of public schools will gather in Syracuse Sunday, Dec. 14, for the annual convention of the New York State Association of Secondary School Principals. As a variation in the usual procedure, a number of workshops have been set up for the Monday sessions. William H. Yates, supervising principal of the local Central School will lead a discussion on the types of evaluative material now in use in New York State Central schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Terpening have moved their household effects from Schroon Lake and are now occupying their recently purchased house on Vineyard avenue, the former home of the late Congressman Harcourt J. Pratt.

Trooper and Mrs. Elliott Johnson and son, Billy have left for a three-week vacation in Florida.

President Mrs. Luther Filkins reported Friday at the meeting of the WSCS that three boxes of clothing had been sent to Five Points Mission in New York and that the Frigidaire demonstration had netted $16.50. It was announced that Miss June Thompson, a student at New Paltz State Teachers College, was representing the local Methodist Church at the state meeting of the Student Movement Conference. Mrs. Parker Decker announced the Christmas program for the Sunday school would be December 22 and in place of donations of clothing the pupils were contributing money for work in foreign fields. Mrs. Meredith Turner was appointed greeting committee for this month. Mrs. Charles Baker is in charge of flowers and Miss Minnie Tiel is general chairman to provide the housekeeping committee to act each month. A Christmas stocking was passed for small change to provide small kitchen utensils needed in the church kitchen. Mrs. Harry B. Cotant, Jr. led the worship service using a story, Kid-Lift, from a recent magazine telling of Christmas given children in Korea by marines. A short playlet with Africa as the scene was enacted by Mrs. John F. Wadlin, Mrs. Charles L. DuBois, Mrs. Henry Swift, Mrs. Stanley Jones and daughter Sara. The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Jacob Schuhle, Mrs. Byron Bennett, Mrs. Floyd Mackey, Miss Daisy Perkins.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., Dec. 12—Once in awhile it is well to consider the past. There is an old-time saying—even if unconfirmed—"History is always repeating itself about every 20 years." Let us look back at the stock market "lows" and birth rates" of 20 years ago. The only logical reason for the above old saying is that people "mature" at about 20 years of age. Even this reasoning should not be taken seriously if the same number of people become 20 years of age every year! For this old theory to work, there must be a differential in the maturity rate. We then can apply this theory as one factor determing stock market movements.

Let's Look at the Record

Although a certain percentage of babies and young people die before 20 years of age, it is fair to assume that the same ratios apply to all who reach the age of 20 during these years. The following table gives an approximate idea of what has happened:

Births 1932-1951

1932	2,074,042
1933	2,081,232
1934	2,167,636
1935	2,155,105
1936	2,144,790
1937	2,203,337
1938	2,286,962
1939	2,265,588
1940	2,360,399
1941	2,513,427
1942	2,808,996
1943	2,934,860
1944	2,794,800
1945	2,735,456
1946	3,288,672
1947	3,699,940
1948	3,535,068
1949	3,581,000
1950	3,451,608
1951	3,648,954

As there were fewer born in the early thirties—there will now be fewer marriages and, hence, fewer birth.

The above figures suggest that an abnormally small number are now reaching 20 years of age. Hence, according to this theory, there should be a decline in business, wages, prices, real estate, etc. around 1953. Of course, births are only one factor; but they should have a bearing on stock and bond prices, notwithstanding the recent Republican victories.

Opportunities for Merchants

The above figures also indicate possible optimistic relationship of the birth rates to certain businesses. For instance, sometimes they are bound to cause an increased demand for everything from diapers to toys; while at other times they help real estate and furniture sales. It is important that manufacturers and merchants, as well as parents, should keep this in mind. This increase in business will first appear as the birth wave develops needs for new babies; then in needs for the young children; then the demands of the teenagers; then in needs for the older youths; and finally the needs of adults.

Statistics show that there has been a great increase in older people, due to various causes. Social Security is reducing worry amongst the aged and certainly they all should thank Francis Townsend of California for this. The new drugs, vitamins, etc. have done much to eliminate disease and lengthen life. What penicillin has done to save the lives of pneumonia patients is a story in itself. Finally, the shorter day and the five-day week have protected the older members of our families. Every manufacturer and shopkeeper is getting more business from older people today than ever before.

Outlook for Colleges

Just now, most colleges are operating at a deficit from temporary lack of students, due to the great drop in the birth rate which came eighteen to twenty years ago. These colleges, however, should take heart because the crest of another wave of high birth rates will begin to benefit them a few years hence. Not only will more men and women demand an education, but better economic conditions will give more families the money to provide such.

In connection with birth rates, we must not forget the returning G.I.'s from Korea. These will be given the same rights to a free college education as were provided to the veterans of World War 2. In view of the election of General Eisenhower as our new President, veterans will receive other advantages and compensations, from which many manufacturers and merchants should benefit. Hence, we should watch birth rate figures for both pessimistic and optimistic signals.

Town of Rochester Has Cancer Education Meeting and Program

An educational meeting of the American Cancer Society's Field Army was held last week in the Accord school auditorium, under the auspices of the school's Parent-Teacher Association. The meeting was well-attended.

Mrs. Julius Herschowsky, field army director of the township of Rochester, and Mrs. Bertha Goodwin, president of the local PTA arranged the meeting which included the showing of an educational film, Man Alive, and an informative and amusing puppet show, Acts on Cancer Facts. Mrs. Edwin Shumate, director of the Field Army volunteers of the UC branch of the American Cancer Society, presented a general survey of the work being done in the county.

Indicative of the general interest show in the Cancer Society's work was the dressing committee initiated at the meeting under the direction of Mrs. Ross Coddington and Mrs. Mrancis Coddington, and the recent inauguration of a transportation system in response to the emergency need of one of its residents for transportation to and from the tumor clinic in this city.

SIMPLE EARLY WEDDING

A bride soon-to-be writes me: "I am going to be married in the morning at a nuptial Mass, and after the ceremony plan to have a reception at home, serving very simple refreshments. Would this still be called a breakfast? I'm afraid if I put 'breakfast' on the invitations, guests will expect a more substantial collation."

I agree with you that the word "breakfast" does suggest a rather substantial collation. The only thing I can think of for the simplest kind of reception that you describe would be to add to the church invitations the wording: "and afterwards to greet them at the house." No one could possibly expect much in the way of breakfast from this wording.

A Ring for Him

Dear Mrs. Post: I am nineteen years old and have been going out quite steadily with a boy of twenty-one. We are more or less engaged, although I do not have an engagement ring as he is a senior in college and cannot afford to buy one at the present time. Now here is my problem: My boy friend will be graduating from college soon and I would like to buy his class ring for him as a graduation present. Childhood Education Group Hears Address By Paltz Professor

A learned and detailed dissertation concerning the teaching of mathematics within the public schools was presented by Dr. Harold E. Tannebaum, professor of education at New Paltz Teachers College, to a large and enthusiastic group of teachers and administrators at the yuletide meeting of the Kingston chapter of the Association for Childhood Education, held recently in the library of the George Washington School.

Illustrating the value of a good arithmetic program, Dr. Tannebaum delved into the historical background of teacher training, contrasted the philosophies of nearly a century ago with present education trends, and elaborated upon the mechanics of arithmetic and its meaning to the children.

An open forum with members and guests participating, followed Dr. Tannebaum's talk. During the discussion, Mrs. Frieda H. Dingee, principal, School 7, described briefly the additional exhibit of materials arranged about the room. The wide selection of materials had been collected from various business concerns which provide sources for making arithmetic more meaningful in the classroom. Miss Ann Whitbeck, member of the faculty of School 2, chairman of the program committee, introduced Dr. Tannebaum to the group, and presided during the forum.

Preceding the meeting, an informal tea was served to members and guests. The table was centered with an attractive mound of laurel and evergreens, adorned with Christmas tree ornaments, flanked by green tapers. Miss Sara Israel, of the George Washington School faculty was chairman of the social hour, assisted by Miss Lena Elmendorf.

Miss Mary Polhemus, president of the local chapter, conducted a brief business session, and announced that the early fall benefit social sponsored in behalf of the Alberta Davis Memorial Fund was a financial success. The group decided to continue the project as an annual money-raising affair. Raymond VanValkenburgh, principal of School 4, was presented as chairman of the Alberta Davis Memorial Fund committee. Mr. VanValkenburgh spoke of the aims and purposes for the establishment of the fund, foremost among them being aid to needy children who are not provided for by other local social agencies.

SIMPLE EARLY WEDDING

A bride soon-to-be writes me: "I am going to be married in the morning at a nuptial Mass, and after the ceremony plan to have a reception at home, serving very simple refreshments. Would this still be called a breakfast? I'm afraid if I put 'breakfast' on the invitations, guests will expect a more substantial collation."

I agree with you that the word "breakfast" does suggest a rather substantial collation. The only thing I can think of for the simplest kind of reception that you describe would be to add to the church invitations the wording: "and afterwards to greet them at the house." No one could possibly expect much in the way of breakfast from this wording.

Red Barber Deplores Over-Emphasis on High School, College Sports

Assails All-Winning Philosophy of Today

Athletics should be treated merely as a "change of pace" in the overall development of a high school or college student, Walter "Red" Barber, CBS Councilor of Sports told an overflow of 530 persons at last night's Kingston High School Athletic Association banquet in the new high school cafeteria.

In a brilliant, witty and philosophical speech that enthralled his audience, the famous Voice of the Dodgers, laid heavy emphasis on his belief that athletics are greatly over-emphasized in an era of high pressure policies when some schools have "sold their athletic birthright" to a lust for victory on the sports fields.

Barber, who was introduced by Toastmaster Clarence S. Rowland, developed his theme by referring to great baseball pitchers and the equipment they needed to reach the top.

"Like the baseball pitcher who relies only on the fast ball and gets it slammed past his ears faster than he throws it to the plate," said the Old Redhead, "so will the student who puts his all in athletics to the neglect of his education run into grave difficulties later in the serious game of life."

"The truly great pitcher," Barber went on, "must have more than the fast ball. He must have a curve . . . and a change of pace. That should be the real role of athletics. It should be a change of pace in the student's life. It should never be regarded as anything more than one of the many facets that go to make up his whole educational life. There is much to be learned from athletics, but it should be kept in its proper place."

Broke Tradition

Pointing out that he was breaking tradition in coming to Kingston for the second time, Barber said "memory is tricky and devastating" but his listeners, many of them repeaters, heard a masterful orator, even wittier than on his first visit two years ago.

The noted sportscaster said he was happy to return to Kingston because he felt a "warmness and realness in the community."

"You are deeply interested in your greatest asset—your children," he said, "and that is a gratifying trait in these days when most people are concerned with making money and budget little or no time for their children."

Education's primary responsibility, Barber believed, was to "prepare the student for the complete life." He reiterated his belief in the values of athletics, the lessons of victory and defeat moulded in the crucible of competition, but he left the impression that he was deeply concerned and disappointed in the trend toward overemphasis.

He said he was tired of hearing alumni groups moan about losing seasons and added that "all victorious teams often breed misconception and present a false evaluation of athletics."

The 'Power of Pain'

Barber concluded his remarks by developing what he called a "power of pain" philosophy toward athletics and life in general. From the pain, frustration and heartbreaks often emerges the more complete man, he went on. He cited many great athletes, particularly Whitlow Wyatt, the great Brooklyn pitcher of 1941, who had to go through the crucible of defeat and disappointment before he came face to face with himself and decided he would have to develop new tricks, a new approach to the serious business of major league pitching.

At the conclusion of his remarkable speech, Barber answered a series of questions and later gave several hundred autographs and displayed his world series score book.

Clarence Rowland, president of the Board of Education, served as toastmaster in the absence of Principal John Martin who was ill.

Coach G. Warren Kias introduced the coaching and physical education staff. Dick Kaslich, chairman of the Athletic Committee of the Board of Education and Joe Stein, AA president, spoke briefly.

Champions Grab Lead in All Star Bowling Meet

Chicago, Dec. 12 (AP)—The defending champions were in the top spot today as finalists began their second day of match game competition in the National All-Star Individual bowling tournament.

Titleholders in both the men's and women's divisions survived tough competition in yesterday's firing but at the end, Junie McMahon and Mrs. Marion Ladewig were the leaders.

The 32 finalists, survivors from a field of 160 men and 48 women, faced the same schedule today as yesterday, 16 games for the men and eight for the women. It will be the same on Saturday and on Sunday, when the nine-day kegling marathon ends.

McMahon, of Chicago and Fairlawn, N. J., and Mrs. Ladewig, of Grand Rapids, Mich., both had slim leads going into today's firing. But both bowled like champions yesterday as they rallied to finish on top of their respective divisions.

Lubanski Trails

McMahon waited until the night's last squad to take the lead away from the qualifying leader, Ed Lubanski of Detroit. McMahon shot 886 to win four games from Stan Gifford of Portland, Ore., and the lead in the tournament.

McMahon's lead was far from secure, however, as he had 77.08 Peterson points to 76.43 points for Lubanski. The Detroit kegler had the best won-lost record as he copped 12 of his 16 games while McMahon won 11 of 16.

Mrs. Ladewig, who has won the women's championship for the three years it has been in existence, lost her second game of the day to Marion Turash of Brooklyn but then won the next six to take first place.

Giving her competition was Doris Knechtges of Detroit who had 38.00 Petersen points to Mrs. Ladewig's 38.48. Of her eight games, Miss Knechtges won seven and tied one. However, her pin fall of 1525 was much lower than Mrs. Ladewig's 1598 for the same number of games.

Saxton Favored

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Undefeated Johnny Saxton will be swinging for a quick knockout tonight when he faces Cuba's Raul Perez at Madison Square Garden in a welterweight ten rounder. The 22-year old Brooklyn Negro is a 4-1 favorite to win the nationally telecast scrap. Saxton has won 15 of his fights by knockouts. The 26-year old Perez has a 31-5-2 record.

Coach G. Warren Kias unveils his "new" Kingston High School basketball combine against the powerful Fallsburg Central Comets in the 1952-53 DUSO basketball opener tonight at the municipal auditorium.

The varsity game starts at 8:30 and is preceded by a Jayvee preliminary.

With the entire 1951-52 cast wiped out by graduation and other factors, the highly successful Maroon mentor will have to go it with an inexperienced, but speedy band of players.

Lineup Not Set

Coach Kias has not announced a starting lineup and said this morning he probably wouldn't make up his mind until game time.

Seven players appear to be Kias' selections for the varsity "seven," a policy he has followed for the past few years. They include Palmer Brodhead, Jr., John Godwin, Dick Bezemer, Bill Haber, Bill DuBois, George Telepas and Harry La Forge.

The team figures to have speed and more backcourt scoring power than any of the recent squads. But it seems to be asking too much to have it compete on even terms this season with the Fallsburg and Newburgh powerhouses.

Fallsburg lost Bob Laskowitz, a 1000-point career man, but retains Aaron Podhurst, a seasoned campaigner, and a new sensation, Melvin Feldman.

New York (Sunnyside Gardens)—Vinnie D'Andrea, 156, New York, outpointed Tony Amato, 160, Hoboken, N. J., 8.

Red Barber Deplores Over-Emphasis on High School, College Sports

Assails All-Winning Philosophy of Today

Athletics should be treated merely as a "change of pace" in the overall development of a high school or college student, Walter "Red" Barber, CBS Councilor of Sports told an overflow of 530 persons at last night's Kingston High School Athletic Association banquet in the new high school cafeteria.

In a brilliant, witty and philosophical speech that enthralled his audience, the famous Voice of the Dodgers, laid heavy emphasis on his belief that athletics are greatly over-emphasized in an era of high pressure policies when some schools have "sold their athletic birthright" to a lust for victory on the sports fields.

Barber, who was introduced by Toastmaster Clarence S. Rowland, developed his theme by referring to great baseball pitchers and the equipment they needed to reach the top.

"Like the baseball pitcher who relies only on the fast ball and gets it slammed past his ears faster than he throws it to the plate," said the Old Redhead, "so will the student who puts his all in athletics to the neglect of his education run into grave difficulties later in the serious game of life."

"The truly great pitcher," Barber went on, "must have more than the fast ball. He must have a curve . . . and a change of pace. That should be the real role of athletics. It should be a change of pace in the student's life. It should never be regarded as anything more than one of the many facets that go to make up his whole educational life. There is much to be learned from athletics, but it should be kept in its proper place."

Broke Tradition

Pointing out that he was breaking tradition in coming to Kingston for the second time, Barber said "memory is tricky and devastating" but his listeners, many of them repeaters, heard a masterful orator, even wittier than on his first visit two years ago.

The noted sportscaster said he was happy to return to Kingston because he felt a "warmness and realness in the community."

"You are deeply interested in your greatest asset—your children," he said, "and that is a gratifying trait in these days when most people are concerned with making money and budget little or no time for their children."

Education's primary responsibility, Barber believed, was to "prepare the student for the complete life." He reiterated his belief in the values of athletics, the lessons of victory and defeat moulded in the crucible of competition, but he left the impression that he was deeply concerned and disappointed in the trend toward overemphasis.

He said he was tired of hearing alumni groups moan about losing seasons and added that "all victorious teams often breed misconception and present a false evaluation of athletics."

The 'Power of Pain'

Barber concluded his remarks by developing what he called a "power of pain" philosophy toward athletics and life in general. From the pain, frustration and heartbreaks often emerges the more complete man, he went on. He cited many great athletes, particularly Whitlow Wyatt, the great Brooklyn pitcher of 1941, who had to go through the crucible of defeat and disappointment before he came face to face with himself and decided he would have to develop new tricks, a new approach to the serious business of major league pitching.

At the conclusion of his remarkable speech, Barber answered a series of questions and later gave several hundred autographs and displayed his world series score book.

Clarence Rowland, president of the Board of Education, served as toastmaster in the absence of Principal John Martin who was ill.

Coach G. Warren Kias introduced the coaching and physical education staff. Dick Kaslich, chairman of the Athletic Committee of the Board of Education and Joe Stein, AA president, spoke briefly.

Champions Grab Lead in All Star Bowling Meet

Chicago, Dec. 12 (AP)—The defending champions were in the top spot today as finalists began their second day of match game competition in the National All-Star Individual bowling tournament.

Titleholders in both the men's and women's divisions survived tough competition in yesterday's firing but at the end, Junie McMahon and Mrs. Marion Ladewig were the leaders.

The 32 finalists, survivors from a field of 160 men and 48 women, faced the same schedule today as yesterday, 16 games for the men and eight for the women. It will be the same on Saturday and on Sunday, when the nine-day kegling marathon ends.

McMahon, of Chicago and Fairlawn, N. J., and Mrs. Ladewig, of Grand Rapids, Mich., both had slim leads going into today's firing. But both bowled like champions yesterday as they rallied to finish on top of their respective divisions.

Lubanski Trails

McMahon waited until the night's last squad to take the lead away from the qualifying leader, Ed Lubanski of Detroit. McMahon shot 886 to win four games from Stan Gifford of Portland, Ore., and the lead in the tournament.

McMahon's lead was far from secure, however, as he had 77.08 Peterson points to 76.43 points for Lubanski. The Detroit kegler had the best won-lost record as he copped 12 of his 16 games while McMahon won 11 of 16.

Mrs. Ladewig, who has won the women's championship for the three years it has been in existence, lost her second game of the day to Marion Turash of Brooklyn but then won the next six to take first place.

Giving her competition was Doris Knechtges of Detroit who had 38.00 Petersen points to Mrs. Ladewig's 38.48. Of her eight games, Miss Knechtges won seven and tied one. However, her pin fall of 1525 was much lower than Mrs. Ladewig's 1598 for the same number of games.

Saxton Favored

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Undefeated Johnny Saxton will be swinging for a quick knockout tonight when he faces Cuba's Raul Perez at Madison Square Garden in a welterweight ten rounder. The 22-year old Brooklyn Negro is a 4-1 favorite to win the nationally telecast scrap. Saxton has won 15 of his fights by knockouts. The 26-year old Perez has a 31-5-2 record.

George Shufeldt Sets New Major League Record With 738 Triple

Kingston Lumber Five Pounds 937 and 2616

Prep for $100 Match With 2 New Records

The high powered Kingston Lumber keglerettes of the Friendship League, who have a $100 challenge match scheduled Saturday night against the Hamburger Paradise males at the Central Recs, are obviously ready.

Maintaining their spectacular tempo of the past month, the Lumberettes set two new team records in this week's firing and Fannie Battaglino, one of the squad, led the circuit with a 599 series.

The Lumberettes broke their own previous team single of 936 by a single pin and blasted 2616 to eclipse their own record of 2535. Their game totals were 937, 794 and 885 .

Miss Battaglino led off with a rousing 234 and followed with 163 and 202. The 2616 was established despite a pair of blind scores in the first game, which makes the 937 all the more remarkable. In that set, Miriam Posner furnished 213 and Eleanor Singer shot 169.

Lineups Named

The Kingston Lumber lineup Saturday night will include Eleanor Singer, captain; Rose Schatzel, Dot Flemings, Miriam Posner and Fannie Battaglino.

Although the stakes are unusually high, Mrs. Singer, the team captain, expressed complete confidence in their ability to win.

"We're building a jackpot to finance our trip to nationals at Detroit and this will be a good start. Our team average is just about the same as that of the Hamburger Paradise and I think we can take the pressure as well as they do."

Rose Rhymer Hits 523

Rose Rhymer's 210-523 was good for second place in the league. Miriam Posner bombed 213-523 and Eleanor Dumenigo shot 201-512. Ada Markle had 502, Dot Rawding 498, Reta Frederick 488, Eleanor Singer 487, Rose Mellert 484, Marge Jansen 482 and Dot Khederian 482.

William Parker's 521 on scores of 192-141-188 paced the Chalet Leaders this week. Others in the 500 bracket included H. Krom with 515; R. Dellay 514; L. Constant 215-512; Henry Houska 510; E. McCaffrey 222-509; C. Reilly 503; J. Fahey 503 and W. Fatum 217-500.

Team results:

Rosendale Florists 3, Aqueduct Gifts 0; Rune's Service 2, Duffy Insurance 0; Zimmer's Real Estate 3, Yonnetti Decorators 0; Williams Lake 3, Schryver Lumber 0; Quick's Service 2, Moylans 1; Vaughns Drugs 2, Van Kleecks 1.

Estelle DePuy opened with a neat 229 single and finished with 505 to pace the New Paltz Nite Cap League this week. Her other scores were 130 and 146.

Others in the top bracket were June Van Kleeck with 459; Nellie Alverson 447; Dottie McCormick 482; Marge Osterhoudt 418; Livia Tenedini 483; Kitty Houska 463; Peg Purcell 426; Barbara Schulte 421; Esther Ott 422; Marie Lipani 411 and Rosella Coulter 438.

Following this week's action, the Amocettes and New Paltz Savings are tied for first place, 24 wins and 12 losses.

Reels Off Scores 215, 277 and 246 On Alleys 7 and 8

Joe Maurer Blasts 693 on Same Lanes

Ferraro Major League keglers shattered the individual high series record twice last night—George Shufeldt with a thumping 738 and Joe Maurer with 693.

The former high of 696 was established a week ago by Johnny Ferraro.

In compiling his second "700" in less than a year, Shufeldt literally took the productive 7 and 8 alleys apart with solos of 215, 277 and 246.

Maurer poured a steady crescendo of strikes for 216, 233 and 244. Johnny Ferraro shot 200-202-231-633 and Ralph Dumenigo had 232-202-602. Thereafter the scores were decidedly normal.

High and Low

Shufeldt's spectacular pocket blasting highlighted the weird gyrations of last night's scoring pattern. While he and Maurer cracked the two highest triples of the season, there were no less than 14 out of 66 bowlers in the "400" class.

In the team department, Saccoman's Jewelers, powered by Shufeldt's big blast, took the honors with 920, 1069 and 1026 for 3015. The other scores were just so-so.

Jones Dairy swept three games from a mysterious band of trundlers known as Team No. 12 to assume first place in the standings by a game margin over Hymes Shoes, 2-1 winners over Van's Gas Station. Elston's Sport are in third place.

Behind the heroics of Shufeldt and Maurer, and the "600" by Ferraro and Dumenigo, came Fred Ferraro's 244-597; Buster Ferraro 209-200-593; Joe Ruzzo 215-202-593; Ed Murphy 233-592; Chris Gallo 222-591; Randy Kelder 202-569; Ken Joseph 227-568; Larry Petersen, Jr., 207-562.

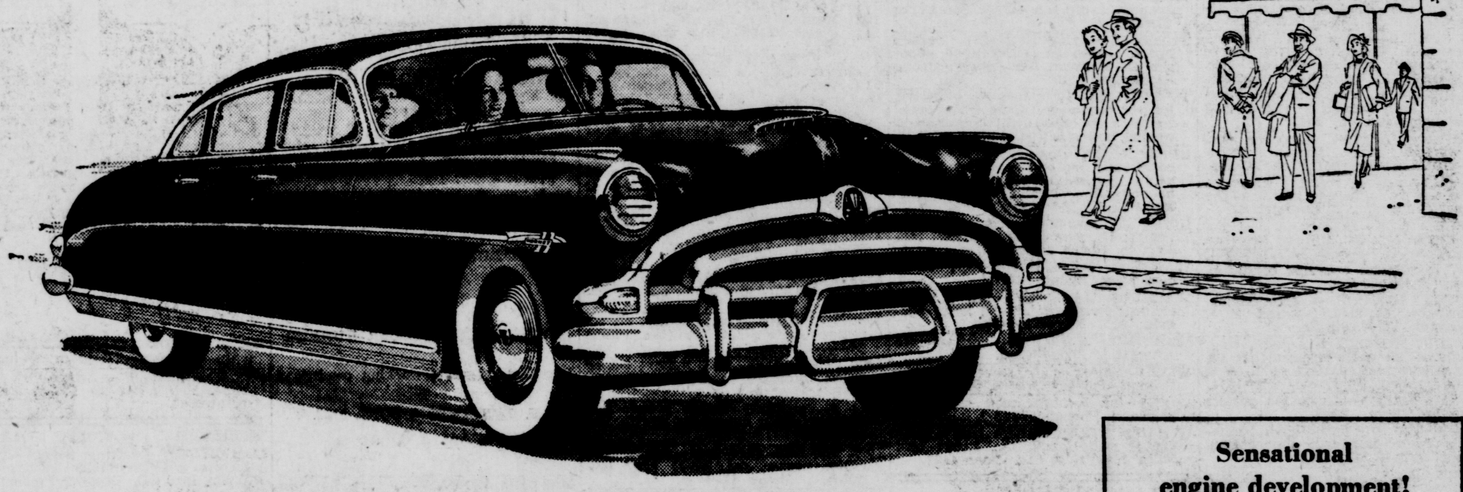
sets the style for 1953



Announcing a fabulous new
HUDSON HORNET
and a spectacular new HUDSON WASP

HERE IT IS, the fabulous Hudson Hornet for 1953—beautiful, luxurious new version of the car that won 44 out of 52 stock-car races in 1952, a record never approached by any other make. You've never driven a car so lovely, so smart, so thrilling!

See the Hudson Hornet's restful color harmony in your choice of two ensembles to complement exterior car colors. See and try new foam rubber seat cushions with bolstered and rolled-edge contours for more comfort. See the nylon interior fabrics in exquisite patterns new to the auto world.

And try the 1953 Hudsons on the highway! Feel them hug the road on turns: the result of Hudson's exclusive "step-down" design, which gives them the lowest center of gravity in any American car!

And for 1953—there are two great, lower-priced running mates to the Hudson Hornet—the new Hudson Super Wasp and the new Hudson Wasp. The Super Wasp has a high-compression H-127 engine and smart new interiors; and the even lower-priced Hudson Wasp features a powerful H-112 engine and interiors unsurpassed in its field.

Standard trim and other specifications and accessories subject to change without notice.

COME SEE THE 1953 HUDSONS TODAY!

George Shufeldt Sets New Major League Record With 738 Triple

Kingston Lumber Five Pounds 937 and 2616

Prep for $100 Match With 2 New Records

The high powered Kingston Lumber keglerettes of the Friendship League, who have a $100 challenge match scheduled Saturday night against the Hamburger Paradise males at the Central Recs, are obviously ready.

Maintaining their spectacular tempo of the past month, the Lumberettes set two new team records in this week's firing and Fannie Battaglino, one of the squad, led the circuit with a 599 series.

The Lumberettes broke their own previous team single of 936 by a single pin and blasted 2616 to eclipse their own record of 2535. Their game totals were 937, 794 and 885.

Miss Battaglino led off with a rousing 234 and followed with 163 and 202. The 2616 was established despite a pair of blind scores in the first game, which makes the 937 all the more remarkable. In that set, Miriam Posner furnished 213 and Eleanor Singer shot 169.

Lineups Named

The Kingston Lumber lineup Saturday night will include Eleanor Singer, captain; Rose Schatzel, Dot Flemings, Miriam Posner and Fannie Battaglino.

Although the stakes are unusually high, Mrs. Singer, the team captain, expressed complete confidence in their ability to win.

Joe Maurer Blasts 693 on Same Lanes

Ferraro Major League keglers shattered the individual high series record twice last night—George Shufeldt with a thumping 738 and Joe Maurer with 693.

The former high of 696 was established a week ago by Johnny Ferraro.

In compiling his second "700" in less than a year, Shufeldt literally took the productive 7 and 8 alleys apart with solos of 215, 277 and 246.

Maurer poured a steady crescendo of strikes for 216, 233 and 244. Johnny Ferraro shot 200-202-231-633 and Ralph Dumenigo had 232-202-602. Thereafter the scores were decidedly normal.

High and Low

Shufeldt's spectacular pocket blasting highlighted the weird gyrations of last night's scoring pattern. While he and Maurer cracked the two highest triples of the season, there were no less than 14 out of 66 bowlers in the "400" class.

In the team department, Saccoman's Jewelers, powered by Shufeldt's big blast, took the honors with 920, 1069 and 1026 for 3015. The other scores were just so-so.

Jones Dairy swept three games from a mysterious band of trundlers known as Team No. 12 to assume first place in the standings by a game margin over Hymes Shoes, 2-1 winners over Van's Gas Station. Elston's Sport are in third place.

Behind the heroics of Shufeldt and Maurer, and the "600" by Ferraro and Dumenigo, came Fred Ferraro's 244-597; Buster Ferraro 209-200-593; Joe Ruzzo 215-202-593; Ed Murphy 233-592; Chris Gallo 222-591; Randy Kelder 202-569; Ken Joseph 227-568; Larry Petersen, Jr., 207-562.

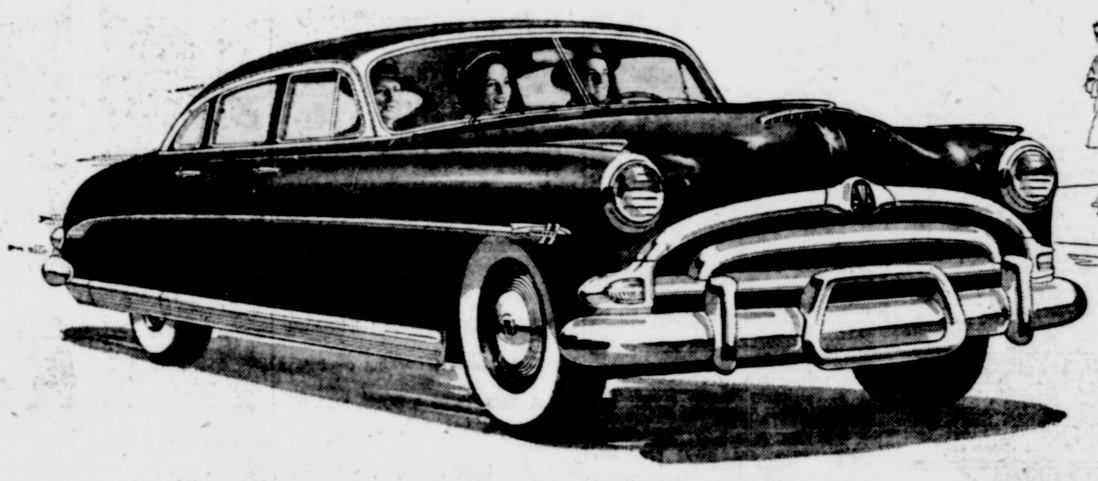
HUDSON
with an all-time record in stock-car contests for performance, safety and durability
sets the style for 1953



Announcing a fabulous new
HUDSON HORNET
and a spectacular new HUDSON WASP

HERE IT IS, the fabulous Hudson Hornet for 1953—beautiful, luxurious new version of the car that won 44 out of 52 stock-car races in 1952, a record never approached by any other make. You've never driven a car so lovely, so smart, so thrilling!

See the Hudson Hornet's restful color harmony in your choice of two ensembles to complement exterior car colors. See and try new foam rubber seat cushions with bolstered and rolled-edge contours for more comfort. See the nylon interior fabrics in exquisite patterns new to the auto world.

And try the 1953 Hudsons on the highway! Feel them hug the road on turns: the result of Hudson's exclusive "step-down" design, which gives them the lowest center of gravity in any American car!

And for 1953—there are two great, lower-priced running mates to the Hudson Hornet—the new Hudson Super Wasp and the new Hudson Wasp. The Super Wasp has a high-compression H-127 engine and smart new interiors; and the even lower-priced Hudson Wasp features a powerful H-112 engine and interiors unsurpassed in its field.

Standard trim and other specifications and accessories subject to change without notice.

COME SEE THE 1953 HUDSONS TODAY!

Sensational engine development!

NEW! TWIN H-POWER*

A new system of multiple fueling that develops more surging energy from every drop of gas. And because Hudson engines are so rugged, this power plus can be harnessed for you.

*Optional on the Hudson Hornet and Super Wasp at extra cost.

UNBELIEVABLE TILL YOU TRY IT! COME IN TODAY!

Three great Hudson series for 1953—Hudson Hornet, Hudson Super Wasp and Hudson Wasp. Twin H-Power (on the Hornet and Super Wasp), Overdrive or new Dual-Range Hydra-Matic Drive optional at extra cost.

Won't Serve Time In Procurer Case

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Dress manufacturer Samuel Chapman was convicted yesterday on charges of procuring pretty models for prostitution and was given a suspended sentence of 210 days in jail.

Magistrate Hyman Bushel said sentence was suspended because Chapman never before had been convicted of any crime. He could have received a maximum sentence of three and a half years—six months on each of seven counts.

All counts on which Chapman was found guilty dealt with model Jerri Maxwell, also known as Jerri Barrett.

Innocent in Other Case

He was found innocent on another two-count complaint involving a wiretapped phone conversation with model Nancy Hawkins.

Chapman was not accused of accepting money in the procurement of girls, but of sending them to business friends. Chapman denied this, saying his mention of money to the girls meant only amounts they might earn through his friends by getting jobs as models.

Chapman's counsel said the conviction would be appealed.

"That hand was full of finesses," sighed Hard Luck Joe, "and not a single finesse could possibly work."

There was a certain amount of justice in poor Joe's complaint. Three finesses were possible—two in clubs, and one in diamonds. All three of the finesses would have lost, since West had all of the missing honors.

When the hand was actually played, Joe won the first trick with the ten of hearts, drew three rounds of trumps and then ran the rest of the hearts. On dummy's last heart declarer had to make a discard. He agonized for a long time, trying to decide whether to discard the queen of diamonds or the ten of clubs.

Joe finally decided to discard the ten of clubs and then continued by finessing the queen of clubs. West won with the king of clubs and got out safely with a small club return. Now declarer entered dummy with a trump to finesse the queen of diamonds, and the loss of this finesse spelled defeat for Hard Luck Joe.

The contract should have been made, of course. If you haven't seen the winning line of play, give the hand a second look before you read on.

It was correct for South to win the first trick and draw three rounds of trumps. He should then draw only two more rounds of hearts. By this time, West has only diamonds and clubs left in his hand.

Declarer now continues by finessing the ten of clubs. West can win this trick but must return a diamond or a club, thus giving declarer a free finesse. After getting this free finesse, South can get to dummy with a trump to discard his only losing card on dummy's last heart.

Woman Is Injured On Lucas Turnpike

Irene Blass, 49, of Box 292, Kingston, was treated at Kingston Hospital Thursday afternoon for a lacerated chin, abrasions of the right knee and contusions above an eye which state police said she received in an automobile accident on Lucas turnpike near the Cottekill "four-corners" about 1:45 p. m. She was released after treatment, the hospital reported today.

Her automobile and one driven by Stuart Hammel, 17, of 25 Mountain avenue, Ellenville, were involved in a head-on collision several hundred feet north of Cottekill, troopers said. The front ends of both vehicles were considerably damaged and first reports telephoned to state police indicated occupants were more seriously injured than was later determined to be the fact. Troopers Raymond Kowalski and Robert Chaffee investigated. No arrest was made.

You'd know your gift would grow and grow over the years and that it would be safe and secure for your future use. Why not give Defense Bonds this year to your family and loved ones, and perhaps they'll do the same for you in return.

Teller Writes Own Observation of Fog

A firsthand description of the recent fog in London has been received by Myron J. Teller from his son, Capt. Stedman Teller, US Navy, who was on an official mission in the British Isles when the days were turned into gray mist and the nights into inky blackness.

Capt. Teller, who has served for many years in the air branch of the navy, and is now in Frankfort, Germany, in an advisory capacity for NATO, had gone by air to England just prior to the crippling fogs.

On December 8, he wrote that he was fog-bound in one of London's "soupiest fogs."

"It is a combination of moisture and smoke in the air which turns day into a gray mist and night into inky blackness," wrote Capt. Teller. After walking and riding buses in the fog to learn how London gets around he wrote, "Londoners get around under these circumstances because they are persistent, resourceful and reasonably good natured in spite of the discomfort and circumstances."

Lights burned throughout the day he said and at night cars crawl or stop completely or the passengers get out and walk in front with a white cloth or newspaper to guide the car through the worst patches of fog.

"I have walked for blocks along a main street unable to see traffic on the opposite side, although I could hear it," he wrote.

Listeners Flood Her With Supplies

Olney, Mo., Dec. 12 (AP)—Miss Atha Graffort, 74-year-old foster mother who has seven children living with her, didn't know how she would manage her food budget on an income of less than $200 a month.

Then a national radio program (Ralph Edwards' Truth or Consequences) heard of her problem and asked each listener to send her one can of food.

The mail poured in. Miss Graffort said the children were excused from school to help sort the gifts which arrived in 340 mail bags at their old farm home in this eastern Missouri settlement of 77 persons.

An electric freezer, refrigerator and range arrived from the radio program. And well wishers contributed hundreds of dollars, as much as $591 in a single day.

Says Miss Graffort: "We're very excited about it. I'm just overwhelmed."

Miss Graffort through the years has been foster mother to 94 children. Many of them she has taken to raise were homeless youngsters who were wards of the Board of Children's Guardians in St. Louis.

VA Retains Sites

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP) — The Veterans Administration said today the government has now decided to hang on to 19 sites for proposed VA Hospitals until the new Republican administration has a chance to review the veterans' medical program. This is reversal of the VA announcement last month that it was turning the sites over to the General Services Administration for disposal as surplus because Congress allowed the authorization for construction of the hospitals to die on June 30.

Won't Serve Time In Procurer Case

New York, Dec. 12 (AP)—Dress manufacturer Samuel Chapman was convicted yesterday on charges of procuring pretty models for prostitution and was given a suspended sentence of 210 days in jail.

Magistrate Hyman Bushel said sentence was suspended because Chapman never before had been convicted of any crime. He could have received a maximum sentence of three and a half years—six months on each of seven counts.

All counts on which Chapman was found guilty dealt with model Jerri Maxwell, also known as Jerri Barrett.

Innocent in Other Case

He was found innocent on another two-count complaint involving a wiretapped phone conversation with model Nancy Hawkins.

Chapman was not accused of accepting money in the procurement of girls, but of sending them to business friends. Chapman denied this, saying his mention of money to the girls meant only amounts they might earn through his friends by getting jobs as models.

Chapman's counsel said the conviction would be appealed.

"That hand was full of finesses," sighed Hard Luck Joe, "and not a single finesse could possibly work."

There was a certain amount of justice in poor Joe's complaint. Three finesses were possible—two in clubs, and one in diamonds. All three of the finesses would have lost, since West had all of the missing honors.

When the hand was actually played, Joe won the first trick with the ten of hearts, drew three rounds of trumps and then ran the rest of the hearts. On dummy's last heart declarer had to make a discard. He agonized for a long time, trying to decide whether to discard the queen of diamonds or the ten of clubs.

Joe finally decided to discard the ten of clubs and then continued by finessing the queen of clubs. West won with the king of clubs and got out safely with a small club return. Now declarer entered dummy with a trump to finesse the queen of diamonds, and the loss of this finesse spelled defeat for Hard Luck Joe.

The contract should have been made, of course. If you haven't seen the winning line of play, give the hand a second look before you read on.

It was correct for South to win the first trick and draw three rounds of trumps. He should then draw only two more rounds of hearts. By this time, West has only diamonds and clubs left in his hand.

Declarer now continues by finessing the ten of clubs. West can win this trick but must return a diamond or a club, thus giving declarer a free finesse. After getting this free finesse, South can get to dummy with a trump to discard his only losing card on dummy's last heart.

Woman Is Injured On Lucas Turnpike

Irene Blass, 49, of Box 292, Kingston, was treated at Kingston Hospital Thursday afternoon for a lacerated chin, abrasions of the right knee and contusions above an eye which state police said she received in an automobile accident on Lucas turnpike near the Cottekill "four-corners" about 1:45 p. m. She was released after treatment, the hospital reported today.

Her automobile and one driven by Stuart Hammel, 17, of 25 Mountain avenue, Ellenville, were involved in a head-on collision several hundred feet north of Cottekill, troopers said. The front ends of both vehicles were considerably damaged and first reports telephoned to state police indicated occupants were more seriously injured than was later determined to be the fact. Troopers Raymond Kowalski and Robert Chaffee investigated. No arrest was made.

Season's Greetings

Can you imagine a more gratifying gift on Christmas day than a brand new Defense Bond made out in your name? You'd know your gift would grow and grow over the years and that it would be safe and secure for your future use. Why not give Defense Bonds this year to your family and loved ones, and perhaps they'll do the same for you in return.

Teller Writes Own Observation of Fog

A firsthand description of the recent fog in London has been received by Myron J. Teller from his son, Capt. Stedman Teller, US Navy, who was on an official mission in the British Isles when the days were turned into gray mist and the nights into inky blackness.

Capt. Teller, who has served for many years in the air branch of the navy, and is now in Frankfort, Germany, in an advisory capacity for NATO, had gone by air to England just prior to the crippling fogs.

On December 8, he wrote that he was fog-bound in one of London's "soupiest fogs."

"It is a combination of moisture and smoke in the air which turns day into a gray mist and night into inky blackness," wrote Capt. Teller. After walking and riding buses in the fog to learn how London gets around he wrote, "Londoners get around under these circumstances because they are persistent, resourceful and reasonably good natured in spite of the discomfort and circumstances."

Lights burned throughout the day he said and at night cars crawl or stop completely or the passengers get out and walk in front with a white cloth or newspaper to guide the car through the worst patches of fog.

"I have walked for blocks along a main street unable to see traffic on the opposite side, although I could hear it," he wrote.

Listeners Flood Her With Supplies

Olney, Mo., Dec. 12 (AP)—Miss Atha Graffort, 74-year-old foster mother who has seven children living with her, didn't know how she would manage her food budget on an income of less than $200 a month.

Then a national radio program (Ralph Edwards' Truth or Consequences) heard of her problem and asked each listener to send her one can of food.

The mail poured in. Miss Graffort said the children were excused from school to help sort the gifts which arrived in 340 mail bags at their old farm home in this eastern Missouri settlement of 77 persons.

An electric freezer, refrigerator and range arrived from the radio program. And well wishers contributed hundreds of dollars—as much as $591 in a single day.

Says Miss Graffort: "We're very excited about it. I'm just overwhelmed."

Miss Graffort through the years has been foster mother to 94 children. Many of them she has taken to raise were homeless youngsters who were wards of the Board of Children's Guardians in St. Louis.

VA Retains Sites

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Veterans Administration said today the government has now decided to hang on to 19 sites for proposed VA Hospitals until the new Republican administration has a chance to review the veterans' medical program. This is revelsal of the VA announcement last month that it was turning the sites over to the General Services Administration for disposal as surplus because Congress allowed the authorization for construction of the hospitals to die on June 30.

Scientists estimate that sight accounts for 87 per cent of our knowledge of the outer world.

Decker Held for Car Theft in Ellenville

Raymond Decker, 17, of 1141 Magnolia street, Elizabeth, N. J., was arrested in that city Wednesday night and was returned here the following day by Ellenville police, who accused him of the theft of an automobile.

Arraigned before Acting Police Judge Lawrence Levine on a charge of grand larceny, first degree, Decker waived examination and was ordered held for grand jury action.

Ellenville police accused Decker of taking an automobile belonging to Frank Andranda of Napanoch on Wednesday morning and driving to Elizabeth, where police picked him up on suspicion of trying to take articles from other vehicles. Since he had no registration papers, Elizabeth police contacted Ellenville and learned the automobile he had been driving had been reported stolen, Ellenville police said.

Publisher Says

Eisenhower would shun public controversy with the President. Truman yesterday called the Eisenhower mission to Korea a "piece of political demagoguery" and said it was MacArthur's duty as a soldier to report to the President if he has any plan for peace in Korea.

"Ike is not going to get into any quarrel with Truman," one of Eisenhower's close friends said. "He's going to see Gen. MacArthur, as he said he would, to get MacArthur's views on the best way to bring peace to the Far East. He is not going to become involved in any fight over it."

No Reply to Harshness

"Ike will stand on the sidelines in the Truman-MacArthur affair," another associate said. "Truman has said some harsh things about Ike—but it's my guess that he (Eisenhower) won't make a reply."

The President virtually closed the door yesterday on proposals for a meeting with Eisenhower and MacArthur. He said he believes such a meeting would serve no useful purpose.

MacArthur implied last week he had a new plan for peace in Korea.

(In Washington today Sen. Hunt (D-Wyo.) proposed an immediate extraordinary session of the Senate Armed Services Committee to look into MacArthur's views. Hunt said he thought Congress should be "informed and consulted" at once if there is any new plan to end the war.)

Eisenhower is relaxing after his three-day tour of the frozen desolation of Korea and his cruise aboard the warship Helena. On the oceantrip from Guam he huddled for long hours with heads of his new Republican administration, shaping policy for Korea and the Far East.

Is at Beauty Spot

Kaneohe on the eastern coast of Oahu is a green-clad beauty spot nestled alongside the blue Pacific. Behind it rise the wind sculptured cliffs known as the Pali, a sheer wall with its top in the clouds.

Eisenhower went there from Pearl Harbor where the Helena docked yesterday. But first his motorcade wound in a triumphant procession through Honolulu and to Punchbowl Memorial Cemetery overlooking the city. There the President-elect placed a wreath in memory of the Pacific war dead.

He played golf yesterday. He got a birdie on one hole, but took a nine on another. He kept his score himself as he indulged in a half hour of practice shots.

Might Leave Saturday

Indications are that Eisenhower will leave Saturday afternoon for Travis Air Force Base, Calif. Officials at Travis said he was expected there at 11 p. m. (2 a. m., EST Sunday) . . . two weeks almost to the hour from the time he left Travis on his journey to Korea.

Part of the President-elect's group left Hawaii last night for the U. S. The group included Charles E. Wilson, secretary of defense-designate; Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff; George M. Humphrey, secretary of the treasury-designate; Herbert Brownell, next U. S. attorney general; Gen. Lucius Clay, a close friend and advisor of Eisenhower, and Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, a future White House assistant.

The party was due at Muroc, Calif., air base about 10:30 a. m. (EST) and was to proceed to Austin, Tex.

Wilson said he would leave the group at Austin to look over some war plants there and in Kansas City.

First U. S. federal fish hatchery for propagating Atlantic salmon was established at Bucksport, Me., in 1872.

A generation generally is considered to be 33 years, thus allowing three generations to a century.

Censorship System Ready

Washington, Dec. 12 (AP)—A new, uniform system of censorship for all the armed forces soon will become effective in Korea. It also would apply wherever American forces become involved in any war. The new regulations officials said bring into one uniform order most of the separate rules and practices enforced by the various services in the past. Most significant change is placing field press censorship directly under the public information agencies of the services. Intelligence and other staff units have had this authority. Although designed primarily for overseas theatres of war, the regulations provide that censorship may be enforced within the continenal United States upon orders by the President or secretary of defense if the country has been or is about to be invaded. The announcement yesterday said the new regulations were worked up some time ago after consultation with prominent American editors and news representatives. Some of the objections they made to the original proposals were met in the final order.
